Council Approves Condemnation For Bypass Proposal

Pottstown borough council Monday night passed an ordinance to condemn land at North Adams and Jackson streets in order to complete the Jackson street-Wilson street bypass.

Condemnation proceedings will begin immediately, and besides using the land to tie in the two North end streets, a "recreation area" has been mapped out north of the road.

Both Jackson street and Wilson street terminate at North Adams street, about a half block apart. They will be connected by a sweeping "S" curve, and the street will then be a modified thruway from Farmington avenue to Keim street.

Jackson street at the east end will later be cut through to Beech street. At the west end, Wilson street will some day continue through to Glasgow street.

COUNCIL CONSUMED its first hour of the two and a half hour session by passing five ordinances and seven resolutions.

The borough's governing body went on to award ten contracts, repeal an ordinance, accept a policeman's resignation, approve an appointment, table one question and pass two general motions.

All without so much as a hassle or angry word.

Council, with 18 of 20 members present, agreed unanimously in each instance.

The councilmen agreed to a highway committee proposal to build five streets around the site of the new Pottstown High school.

The borough and school board had a difference of opinion for almost two years over who would pay for this road work. The borough will make provisions to pay.

Along with this, a motion was passed to release grades

J. A. SUCHOZA AGAIN HEADS DEMO PARTY

Pottstown Attorney Also Serves on Council

Pottstown and area Democrat leaders Monday night chose attorney Joseph A. Suchoza their party chairman for the coming year.

The 31 year old Third ward councilman just completed the term of Maurice Miller, who retired from his post at the beginning of the year.

Charles A. Dasch was re-elected vice chairman of the area party, which includes the three Pottsgroves.

Dasch, a Democratic candidate for the State General Assembly, completed the term of attorney Daniel L. Quinlan Jr., who resigned earlier this year when he moved his law practice to Norristown.

JOSEPH V. KRAYNAK, 179 North Franklin street, was named secretary treasurer of the party organization. He is employed as an investigator for the State Department of Revenue.

Approximately 35 party leaders gathered in Maria Assunta lodge, where they elected their leaders, with opposition in each case.

NORCO SEEKS PART TIME POLICEMAN

Board Takes Steps Toward Sewer Project

BIDS TO BE SOUGHT FOR ROAD PROGRAM

North Coventry will seek an assistant for Police Chief Charles Wilt.

Two applicants for the part-time job are being considered and more will be solicited. Advertisements for the position will be printed this week.

The successful candidate probably will work 20 hours a week and receive $1.25 to $1.40 an hour. He probably will have to supply his own gun, but the township will give him a uniform.

Talk of a second law officer in North Coventry started many months ago. The late police chief Daniel Guldin requested an assistant but the matter was shelved.

* * *

THE REASON for hiring a part time patrolman now is to give "a buffer" to township safety in case of illness to Chief Wilt, noted a spokesman.

He also noted that North Coventry covers more land than Lower Pottsgrove township

Clear Sailing Seen In Completion of Area School Work

"Things are moving again for the first time in six weeks," a Schwenksville school official reported happily Monday night.

Schwenksville Supervising Principal Robert Cope told school board members Monday that construction of the addition to the high school will be completed in time for use during the next school year.

The final complication of a series that delayed construction was removed when Warren B. Zern, Pottstown builder, was approved as contractor for completing the building.

Zern's approval came in an agreement reached Wednesday by the school authority and the Amsterdam Casualty company for settlement of the defaulted contract of Burton L. Grossman, incorporated.

School officials said that Grossman defaulted the $367,000 contract for an addition to the J. Horace Landis building because of unstable financial conditions. The approval of the bonding company was required for a successor to Grossman before work could continue.

COPE STATED Monday night, "Work is going well and things are looking much more optimistic than they have for a long time." Zern already has started work on completing the $125,000 of construction that remains. His contract calls for completion by Aug. 24.

Aside from the report on construction the board considered a number of lesser matters Monday night.

A contract for supplying fuel oil for the next fiscal year was awarded to Walter F. Schwab, Pottstown dealer, over four other bidders. Schwab's bid, the lowest submitted, was $.0763 per gallon.

All bidders indicated that the future prices may fluctuate in accordance with the rates established by their suppliers and refiners.

Other bids were: John R Young company, Hendricks, $.0795 per gallon; William E. Boalton, Pottstown, $.0817; Leonard A. Swann, Sassamansville, $.0825; and Patterson Oil company, Philadelphia, $.09.

TEEN-AGER DIES ENROUTE TO HOSPITAL

Girl Was Stricken Suddenly At Home

CHILD COMPLAINED OF SORE THROAT

A 14 year old area girl died early Monday evening as her parents were rushing her to Memorial hospital.

Laura Ann Updegrove, daughter of Norman and Jane (Pursel) Updegrove, Birdsboro RD 2, was dead on arrival at the hospital at 6:55 o'clock.

Her parents said Laura Ann had been in perfect health until Monday morning, when she awoke complaining of a sore throat.

Around noon she felt better, and the illness seemed to pass. Later in the day she became violently ill. When she fell at her home along Route 422, her parents rushed her to the hospital.

Dr. John C. Simpson, Montgomery county coroner, said an autopsy will be performed today.

Tentative Budget Is Passed Quickly By School Board

The Pottstown School board quickly and quietly, except for a defeated motion to add $600 to the budget, voted tentative acceptance of a $2.6 million 1960-61 budget at the monthly meeting Monday night.

The defeated motion came from Charles L. Rohland who requested the amount to go to the Recreation commission because money had been cut from its budget in previous years and a new recreation leader had been hired.

Except for Rohland's motion, the budget was not questioned, but a special meeting for final adoption was set for June 13 at 12:15 p. m. The next regular meeting is June 6 at 8 p. m. in the school administration building, Beech and Penn streets.

Little was done to solve the salary increase request made by the athletic staff of Pottstown Junior and Senior High school. The request went to the activities committee of the board and questionnaires were sent Friday to all coaches asking for detailed descriptions of their extra-curricular duties.

EARLIER MONDAY, Morrell E. Grigg, director of athletics, said there would be no coaches at the board meeting.

"There is nothing they can do until the board takes action. They have all the information. If they turn the requests down then there's nothing else to be said," Grigg said.

Carl M. Hofheinz, committee chairman, presented salary schedules of head and assistant coaches of the Greater Philadelphia area showing where Pottstown stands in relation to other schools.

FTC ENTERS INSURANCE INVESTIGATION

Air Force Is Ordered To Submit Names Of Companies

The Federal Trade Commission joined with other Federal, Congressional and civilian agencies in an investigation of the "methods employed by certain mail order insurance companies in obtaining names of new armed service inductees."

The investigation was touched off nearly two months ago when The Mercury uncovered eight insurance companies based in the Southwest operating through the mails in the Pottstown area.

Since that time, investigations on the State level have resulted in the placing of five of the companies on the list of companies "not authorized" to do business in Pennsylvania.

Earl W. Kintner, chairman of the FTC, a Federal regulatory agency, has ordered the Air Force "to submit to the Commission complete information on the subject, including the names and addresses of

Prospective Brides Showered With Mail Come-Ons

—Mercury Staff Photos

No, it's not after a party, it's before the weddings. Three Pottstown misses have their hands full with keeping the soliciting mail read and a harder time keeping it in a basket. The three are forthcoming brides. On the left Jane Wetherhold, 186 Sunrise lane needs a snow shovel for the mail that snowballed in suggesting she buy their ware. In the center, Nancy Boughter, 356 Chestnut street is just about to give up and throw all the letters away. Diane DeWan, 166 Sunrise lane, right, shows she needs another hand or two, or another waste basket.

It's Spring, And a Salesman's Fancy Turns to June Brides' Pocketbooks

The bells are ringing, the mailman is getting haggard and the salesmen are having a field day.

Why? Well, it's the time of the year when most persons in love want to get married.

But the ringing bells are not the wedding type, these are the distracting telephone and door bells being rung by salesmen who are selling or trying to sell their wares.

With the mail, it's not as noisy, but certainly takes up a lot of time keeping it read.

TESTIFYING TO this is Jane Wetherhold, 186 Sunrise lane,, a prospective June 18 bride. "I had quite a few calls and a lot of mail right after the announcement came out. One man kept calling me back on the 'phone to find out if I had changed my mind about buying what he was selling."

But Miss Wetherhold said all the sales talks and mail she received was a waste of time for the solicitors. "I only bought one thing from any of the salesmen," she said.

"I think most people know where they want to get their things and who from," she added.

"I knew where I wanted to buy most of my things," said Diane DeWan, 166 Sunrise lane, whose big day will be July 23.

"But it wasn't a total waste of time for the salesmen," she said laughing. "I bought some pots and pans from one of them."

Needed But Shunned

Apartments Present Peculiar Problems

Why doesn't Pottstown have more multiple-dwelling apartment houses?

Several local builders agree that there is a definite need in the borough for what one of them terms "quality" apartments.

Yet no one seems willing to start the ball rolling.

Warren B. Zern, who built and operates the 104-unit Belmont apartments and the 30-unit Franklin apartments, says one of the major problems a contractor faces is opposition from homeowners.

Zern says he had considered building another apartment house on a Warren street plot between Prospect and Grace streets. But two months ago he sold the land to another builder who will use it for the construction of single homes.

"Everybody fights the idea whenever a builder talks about putting up an apartment house in a desirable residential location," according to Zern.

"But as soon as you build one," he says, "you'll find people rushing to build their homes right next to it."

ZERN SAYS he watched this happen in 1950 when he constructed his Belmont apartments on Hale and Warren streets between Grace and Mineral streets.

Under the borough zoning code adopted in 1954, multiple dwelling units are permitted only in those residential districts designated as R-3.

In a residential district designated R-A, R-1 or R-2, the only way a builder can hope to put up apartment dwellings is by persuading the zoning board of adjustment to grant an exception.

Heavy Rains End Threat Of Drouth

Heavy rains Monday, which ended what was becoming a drouth with 1.22 inches of rain have moved out to sea, and fair and cooler weather is expected the next few days.

Following .86 of an inch of rain Sunday, with brief showers predicted, the low pressure storm area became stationary and dumped an additional 1.02 inches on Pottstown between midnight Sunday and 8 a. m Monday.

A few more showers early in the day added another .2 of an inch to the accumulation. Then the squall line preceding a high pressure area moved off the coast.

Sharp northwesterly winds from 15 to 25 miles per hour dropped the mercury 10 degrees in the half hour between 11:30 a. m. and noon.

1960 Job Picture For Seniors Is Evaluated By State Office

Job prospects are good for high school graduates this June. But the picture may not be as bright as 1959.

Two hundred employers have been contacted by the State employment security office. Mrs. Margaret King, manager, said that despite her broad survey of job prospects, results are inconclusive.

Need New American Flags

Problems Unfurled For Area Churches

"I guess we're just Scotsmen and one day they'll probably add Puerto Rico to the Union. Then where would we be?"

This was the humorous answer of the Rev. Dr. C. William Ebbert, pastor of St. Paul's United church of Christ, Franklin and Grace streets, to a problem that many Americans will face on July 4—whether to replace outmoded but not out-worn 48-star flags.

The problem is a little less expensive for the average person who wants a flag to decorate his home than it is for a church which most often uses a 4½-foot by 5½-foot silk flag.

One Philadelphia flag maker said that the typical flag used by a church costs $66.50—without the pole and stand. For the 135 churches in the area, the bill comes to nearly $9000.

LUCKILY, HOWEVER, most flags used by the churches are donated by individual members of the congregation, or affiliated church groups, such as Ladies auxiliaries, scouts, or men's clubs.

There are less expensive models, however, in the same size. The $66.50 model is made of silk, but a nylon flag sells for $36.35 and a taffeta one for $25.20. The stand and pole would be an extra $28.50.

But there is another out. The law says that a flag can be used until it is worn out and this seems to be the position of most of the churches unless someone cares to donate a new flag as a memorial or a gift.

The flag that the Rev. Ebbert referred to is only about two years old, "and because we're Scotsmen, I guess we won't get a new one until the need arises."

Youth Escapes Driving Rain The Hard Way

A Pottstown teen-ager pushed his knee through a plate glass window at B. E. Block and Brothers, 269 High street, during a driving rain Monday at 11:30 a. m.

The boy, John D. Eppler, 16, of 217 Water street, escaped injury.

Carroll Pollock, manager of Block's, said the youth "was very lucky. A portion of that jagged glass could easily have fallen and cut his head off."

Eppler went into the furniture store immediately after the accident and reported what had happened. He said he and four or five other boys dashed into the entranceway of the store to get out of the rain.

Pollock said "there's hardly room for five people to crowd into the entrance. It's no wonder there was an accident."

Planning Commission Appointed by Board

A five member planning commission was appointed Monday night by S. Alan Dewees, president of Upper Uwchlan supervisors, at the Font school.

Dewees said the commission will study the township's growth and present plan to the supervisors for regulating it. He said that this might include a zoning commission.

The township is not currently zoned. Bills of $600 were paid.

President's Directives Okayed Flights for National Security

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States acknowledged Monday it has sent spy flights into the Soviet Union—under President Eisenhower's general orders.

The State Department did not discourage a deduction that such flights may continue until Soviet leaders open their borders to inspection.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, in making the acknowledgement, strongly defended intelligence flights by unarmed civilian planes as urgently necessary to guard the non-Communist world against surprise Soviet attack.

In a special statement, Herter suggested that next week's summit conference make an earnest attempt to agree on safeguards which would end the threat that either side could suddenly launch a nuclear onslaught against the other.

With the approval of President Eisenhower, Herter frankly admitted American planes have carried out "extensive aerial surveillance" of Communist territory under directives issued by the President as part of his national security duties.

Here, there was mention of the National Security Act of 1947, but the wording made it clear that the secretary was speaking only of President Eisenhower, who went into office in 1953.

"Specific missions of these unarmed civilians aircraft have not been subject to presidential authorization." Herter said.

After Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev reported the capture of a 30-year-old American flier deep inside the Soviet Union, the State Department acknowledged an intelligence flight over Soviet territory probably was undertaken. It said "insofar as the authorities in Washington are concerned, there was no authorization for any such flight as described by Mr. Khrushchev."

Herter's disclosures Monday came as the administration hurriedly sought to ease congressional demands for more information.

Herter, accompanied by Central Intelligence Chief Allen W. Dulles —the man Khrushchev claims bosses such spy flights—briefed 18 congressional leaders behind closed doors at the Capitol on the incident.

Government security agents guarded the door of the committee room where both men appeared. A heavy blanket was hung over the doorway to muffle the sound of voices.

Herter's carefully drafted statement, issued after the 90-minute briefing, did not say flatly that the United States would continue sending planes over Soviet territory.

But, for the first time, it was acknowledged that such flights were undertaken not only along the frontiers of the Communist world, but "by penetration"—that is, flights deep into Communist territory.

Herter's statement constituted a remarkable admission that the United States has been violating international law, intruding without permission into Soviet air space, because of the life-and-death duel for survival with the Communist world.

It was learned that Herter and Dulles told the Congressional leaders that such reconnaissance flights had been made into the Soviet Union for several years.

The legislators were shown pictures taken on successful plane flights which one participant described as being highly illuminating.

WHERE PLANE WAS DOWNED—According to Moscow announcements, the U.S. plane shot down by a Russian rocket crashed at Sverdlovsk (1) where pilot Francis C. Powers was seized after bailing out. According to Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Powers was to fly on a mission indicated by the arrows.

Nikita Threatens to Aim Rockets at Spy Bases

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned Norway and Pakistan Monday night that the Soviet Union will hit at any bases in foreign countries used for American spy flights over Soviet territory.

Khrushchev called Norwegian and Pakistani diplomats over to his side at a Czech Embassy reception.

He told them that if the United States is allowed to continue to use bases in their countries for operations against the Soviet Union "we will have to aim our rockets at your air bases."

In his speech at the reception, held to observe the 15th anniversary of the liberation of Cechoslovakia from Nazi forces, Khrushchev said:

"Those countries that have bases on their territories should note most carefully the following. If they allow others to fly from their bases to our territory we shall hit at those bases."

Norwegian and Pakistani officials have denied any knowledge of the flight of Powers from or to bases in their territory.

"We assess such actions as provocations against our country," Khrushchev said. "We tell the governments of those countries, if you leased your territory to others and are not the masters of your land, of your country, hence, we shall have to understand it in our way.

"Those who lease your territory, operate against us from your territory. Their lands are far from us while your land is near. That is why as a warning to remote targets, we shall find the range to the near ones. Let them draw the appropriate conclusions."

If reconnaissance flights are continued over Soviet territory, Khrushchev went on, "We shall bring down such planes, just bring them down. If such flights are repeated we shall take appropriate counter measures."

He declared that Powers' flight was deliberately timed for next week's summit meeting in Paris.

"The whole of the world wants peace," he said, but "certain quarters in the United States stage such a provocation."

Departure, Destination of Plane In Question After Herter Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter indicated Monday that the U.S. plane shot down by the Soviet Union was not headed for Norway, as the Soviet's claim.

This was reported by the Norwegian ambassador, Paul Koht, after a 15-minute conference with Herter.

However, Koht said, he got the impression that Herter himself does not know the exact destination proposed for the American craft on its hush-hush mission.

The Air Force has said the range of a U2 is about 2,300 statute miles. This would be much shorter than the mileage from Pakistan to Norway, but possibly within range for a flight from Turkey.

Both the Norwegians and Pakistans have denied authorizing any such flight.

The Norwegian envoy said that Herter assured him that if the craft had been headed for Norway, the United States would have asked the normal permission for it to land there.

LAST BLASTS ARE DELIVERED FOR PRIMARY

West Virginia to Test Kennedy, Humphrey Chances

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginia's Democratic presidential campaign churned into its final hours Monday with Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota blazing away at each other as "can't win" candidates.

With fair skies and cool weather predicted, a little more than half of the state's 670,000 registered Democrats are expected to turn out Tuesday for a primary that might have a decisive effect on Kennedy's chances of getting his party's nomination.

In the last stage of their battle, Humphrey, a Congregationalist, was generally credited with holding an edge over Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, in a state where only 4.9 per cent of the population is of the latter's faith.

Humphrey has been stung by Kennedy's contention that almost nobody gives the Minnesota senator a chance to win the nomination—that if he wins here other candidates who are not on the ballot will be the beneficiaries.

Humphrey blasted back with an assertion at Nitro, where he was campaigning on this cold bleak day, that Kennedy couldn't win in November if he got the Democratic nomination.

"If people will look at the voting record, instead of clever advertising propaganda, they will see it is Kennedy, not I, who can't win for the Democrats in November," he said in a statement.

Humphrey said Kennedy turned his back on President Harry S. Truman, "favors special privileges and tax policies against the average taxpayer, played 'footsie' with the big money interests, joined the Republicans to slow down housing construction, refused to provide jobs by needed public works programs."

Humphrey contended only an all-out liberal nominee can win for the Democrats in the general election.

Kennedy fired back with the statement in a Huntington news conference that he is the only Democrat who can defeat Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the prospective GOP nominee. He said it doesn't make sense for persons to vote for Humphrey "when they really favor someone else."

"If I'm defeated, It'll be a wide open race (for the nomination)," he said. "If Mr. Humphrey wins, the chances of somebody being nominated who doesn't understand the problems of West Virginia would be greatly enhanced."

Whoopers Return To Summer Home

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (AP) — The whoopers are returning to their summer home in the wilds of Wood Buffalo National Park on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border, 600 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Parks employes said they had counted nine whooping cranes in the last week. Total number of the near-extinct species is estimated at 47.

The whoopers are coming into the Sass River nesting area after a 2,500-mile flight from the winter grounds on the Gulf of Mexico along the southeast coast of Texas.

Designer of U2 Jet Plane Claims Russian Crash Photos are Faked

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The designer of Lockheed Aircraft's U2 single engine jet plane said Monday he doubts that the Soviets have shot one down inside Russian boundaries.

After studying Soviet photographs of the crashed aircraft, designer C. L. Johnson concluded that they were faked.

"I think the crash photographs released by Russia are those of one of their own Beagle bombers," Johnson said. "It would be very interesting to know why they have hidden the U2."

Said Johnson: "After spending the best part of the weekend analyzing the photographs, with my top technical people, I am convinced that the Russians, for some reason, have released pictures of some other airplane crash.

"I do not believe they shot down the U2 by either a missile or another aircraft. If they have the U2 it is because some mechanical or oxygen failure caused it to descend far below its normal cruising altitude."

Johnson referred to a marked up photograph of the result of his studies. The salient points indicated were these:

"1. The wing section in the left foreground is definitely not that of a U2. The wing taper is wrong as is the structural pattern of the ribs and beams.

"2. The heavy structural element at the top of the photograph has no counterpart in the U2.

"3. Using the original wirephoto (which shows better detail than the newspaper reproductions) not one single U2 part could be identified in the wreckage.

"4. If the wreckage of the U2 were as bad as that shown, it would be extremely unlikely that Mr. Khrushchev would have any photograph to wave around to his public. Much of the wreckage is damaged by fire, which might well destroy the film.

"5. The large number of men, women and children shown in the photo, certainly would not be allowed so close to such an important piece of wreckage at this time. Russian experts certainly would impound the aircraft for detailed study."

Red Spy Nest At Czech Embassy Admitted By Former Military Aide

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators Monday released testimony of a former Czech military attache that his nation's embassy here and U.N. delegation in New York have been loaded with Red spies.

Lt. Col. Frantisek Tisler, the military and air attache who defected to the United States last summer, said his official position was a cover for his main job of heading Czechoslovakia's military intelligence operation in this country.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities released Tisler's secret testimony Monday, obviously to help offset Soviet charges resulting from the shooting down of a U.S. spy plane over the Soviet Union May 1.

Committee Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) said in a statement Tisler's testimony confirms "the overwhelming evidence of widespread Communist espionage on American soil, conducted under the guise of legitimate diplomatic activity." The statement was released from Naples, Italy, where Walter is attending a conference.

Walter said the plane incident should not distract world attention from Communist sabotage and propaganda activities "in every country of the free world."

Committee staff director Richard Arens released a transcript of Tisler's testimony, taken at undisclosed time and place, after communicating with Walter.

Tisler estimated that 45 per cent of Czech Embassy and U.N. personnel in the United States "was engaged in some type of intelligence activity" from 1955 to 1959 when he was assigned here. His own role, Tisler said, was to recruit American agents to furnish him U.S. military secrets. His staff officers, four here and one in New York, attempted the same, Tisler said.

FDA Approves Drug Safe for Birth Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the Food and Drug Administration has approved a pill as safe for contraceptive, or birth control, use.

"Approval was based on the question of safety," Associate Commissioner John L. Harvey said today. "We had no choice as to the morality that might be involved."

"When the data convinced our experts that the drug meets the requirements of the new drug provisions our own ideas of morality had nothing to do with the case," he said.

The pill, which has been approved as safe for contraceptive use, is called Enovid. It is made by G. D. Searle & Co., Chicago.

Under the clearance granted by FDA it may be used only on doctor's prescription.

The drug has been on the market for several years but the previous clearance specified it was to be recommended only for treatment of female disorders.

In Chicago, Dr. L. D. van Ant Werp of the Searles medical department said the pill was 100 per cent effective in a four-year test period involving 1,500 women who made continuous use of the pill as directed.

He said the first tests were carried out in Puerto Rico, followed by others in Los Angeles, San Antonio, Tex., Boston and Japan.

Dr. van Ant Werp said the function of the pill is "to interfere with the production of ova in the same way nature does after a woman becomes pregnant."

To avoid pregnancy a woman must take 20 pills each month, the first on the fifth day of her menstrual period and the last on the 24th day. The cost, he said, is around $10-$11 a month.

Chiropractic Research And Treatment of Polio

Polio, the great crippler, is one of the most dreaded diseases of our times. Chiropractic research into the primary causes and preventive measures of polio, is extensive. Years of investigation in thousands of polio cases, lead chiropractic researchers to concur in the opinion that fatigue, injury as a result of falls, undue exposure to heat or cold, and nutritional deficiences, all are contributing factors.

Correction and treatment of both acute and chronic polio by chiropractic methods, have been unusually successful.

A national survey by Science Sidelights reveals startling results of chiropractic methods in treating polio cases. In 662 acute cases, complete recovery in 445 (71.5%), in 889 chronic cases, complete recovery in 257 (28.9%), marked improvement in 454 (51.1%), slight or no improvement in 178 (20%). This is documented record which shows the polio benefits gained by chiropractic treatment.

Corrective treatment in the early stages of polio is designed to restore spinal and neural normality, and usually prevents, in acute cases, any crippling after-effects of polio under competent chiropractic supervision.

Not content, however, with its proven ability to mitigate the crippling effects of poliomelitis, the chiropractic profession, through the research program of its National Chiropractic Association, is constantly studying new methods of prevention.

Get well—keep well—through Chiropractic.

SPEAKING OF MONEY

By E. PAUL OLIPHANT

President, Security Trust Co.

"THE SMALL BUSINESSMAN"

Big business is a term that is frequently applied to the United States. Actually, that is only half the story. Of all businesses in the country, more than 90 percent are small businesses, and they employ almost 45 percent of all workers. In retailing alone, small stores make more than half all sales. So, by their numbers, by the people they employ and by the volume of business they do, small concerns play a big part in making the nation's economic wheel turn.

Besides the many large corporations with whom we do business, we serve many small businesses in this area. We act as their financial counsel, too. And so we make special effort to anticipate and prepare for the banking needs of the small business man. That is good for the business community.

E. Paul Oliphant

What you, as the owner of a small business, may require in credit is bound to differ from the needs of the big, heavily financed company. It will differ in size of loan needed, in purpose for which the money is borrowed, in seasonal demand for credit, in terms of repayment. In introducing to you a form of credit known as SECURITY TERMS LOANS, we are pioneering in making bank credit more flexible so that it will better fit the needs of the small business. We think this is also good for the business community.

SECURITY'S LENDING POLICY. It has been our policy to specialize in what you might call "Creative Lending." No two applications for a loan are exactly alike. Many facts vary—the purpose, the amount, the terms of the loan; the type of business, its present condition, its future outlook, its hidden potential; the character of the applicant. Under our "Creative Lending" policy we think of every application as a challenge. It is a challenge to devise the loan that is best tailored to your need.

WHAT THEY ARE. When a businessman has a seasonal need or an unusual demand to meet, he borrows from a bank on a 30, 60 or 90 day basis. Generally, these loans are to be paid back in full at maturity.

SECURITY TERM LOANS, on the other hand, are a long-term form of credit. They are made for substantially the same purposes but differ in two important respects: (1) They may run for as long as three years. (2) They are paid back out of earnings.

These features of the SECURITY TERM LOAN make it attractive to many small businesses. This may be just the type of credit you need to pay operating bills, to buy inventory, to modernize or to accomplish some other objective that will benefit your business.

WHO CAN GET THEM. SECURITY TERM LOANS are designed for you—if you run a small established business and can show that the business has the capacity to progress, to expand, to modernize or develop with the right kind of financial assistance. You do not have to have an account with this bank to get a SECURITY TERM LOAN.

HOW TO GET ONE. Go to our nearest office and talk with any of the officers. He'll be glad to go over your need and help you fill out our application. It will help you, and help us, if you come to this meeting with your facts well organized.

NOTE: For financial advice or banking services, you are cordially invited to consult Mr. Oliphant or his executive assistants Harold E. Arbogast and Joseph Hutt, at Security Trust Company, High and Hanover Sts., Pottstown.

church, 414 High street, was unaware that July 4 was the date set for the flying of the 50 star flag. "But we don't want to be out-of-date, so I'll have to discuss it with the church board," he noted.

The Rev. L. Samuel Krouse associate pastor of Emmanuel Lutheran church, Hanover and Walnut streets, also said he "was sure that we will want to be up to date."

"The flag now is a memorial one, and we'll probably make it known so that someone will have the opportunity to donate the new one," he explained.

On a church platform, a flag should be displayed either flat, above and behind the speaker, or on the right of the speaker as he faces the congregation.

BUT IF the flag is not on the platform, it should then be at the right of the congregation as it faces the speaker.

The laws for displaying a flag were codified in 1942 by the 77th Congress from the rules and customs that had grown up since the first United States flag was raised in 1777. But since there is no penalty for incorrect display or observance, the act's effect is that of a recommendation.

While the flag has changed many times in its history, the pledge to the flag has changed only twice since it was drawn up in 1892.

The first change came when the words "of the United States of America" were added and the second when President Eisenhower in 1954 authorized the addition of "under God" following "one nation."

The flag first changed when Vermont and Kentucky entered the Union in 1795—adding two stars and two stripes to the original 13 stars and 13 stripes.

But by 1812, Congress realized that the flag would become burdened with stripes, and authorized a return to the 13 alternating red and white stripes and one star for each state.

Man Is Fined $20 For Abandoning Dogs

An area man was fined $20 plus costs Monday night after he was found guilty of abandoning three dogs at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles Templin, Douglass (Berks) township.

Harvey Lichtenwaller, Boyertown RD 2, denied the charge brought against him by Mrs. Ethel M. Kline, an agent for the Pottstown Animal Rescue society.

Mrs. Kline maintained that Lichtenwaller abandoned three female dogs of mixed breed April 28 near Colebrookdale road in Douglas (Berks) township. Lichtenwaller said the dogs jumped out of his car trunk, but a witness testified she had seen him leave the animals out of the car and drive off.

Fire Company Accepts 13 As New Members

Thirteen new members were accepted into the Schwenksville Fire company at a meeting in the fire hall Monday night.

It was reported that four members attended the Montgomery County Firemen's association meeting in Pennsburg Saturday. They were William Fisher, Russell Krupp, Kenneth Nace and William Reed.

The company assisted at two fires during April, and the fire police helped direct traffic at three public functions.

Bills totaling $200 were ordered paid.

RUSSELL KRUPP was chosen as a delegate to attend the State Firemen's association meeting in Greensboro next month.

Krupp will also attend a meeting called by Governor Lawrence in Harrisburg June 6 to study ways of cutting down on loss of life and property due to accidents.

Twenty members were present at the meeting in charge of John Ziegler, president.

FTC ENTERS INSURANCE INVESTIGATION

the insurance companies involved, and the advertising literature used by them."

Investigations by the Postoffice department, the Secretary of Defense and Pentagon officials are continuing into the leak that allows names of new inductees to be obtained by insurance companies sometimes within 24 hours of enlistment.

The Defense department has admitted that it is almost convinced that the insurance companies are getting the names illegally.

The admission was made by the chairman of the department's Life Insurance board, Leslie V. Dix. It is illegal for military personnel to release the names of servicemen to private companies.

The mail order insurance business first came to light on March 11 when The Mercury printed the story of Jada, the letter-receiving Collie.

The letter requested that Jada, the pet of Pvt. Jack Sotter and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sotter, of 546 North Charlotte street, purchase insurance for Jack, who was stationed at Fort Knox, Ky.

The insurance company had evidently gotten the name of the Collie off a tag attached to a bundle of dirty laundry which Jack had sent to his mother. He had addressed it to the dog as a joke.

The FTC investigation was requested by Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), based on information turned over to him by The Mercury. In a letter to the senator, FTC chairman Kintner explained:

"Representatives of the Commission's Bureau of Investigation have conferred with representatives of the Air Force who are familar with the sale of insurance by mail order to servicemen and their parents. The Air Force is to submit to the commission complete information on the subject, including the names and addresses of the insurance companies involved and advertising literature used by them."

"When this material is received," Kintner promised, "full consideration will be given to it with a view to determining whether action by the Commission is in order."

In addition to the Federal Congregational and military investigations now is progress, two national veteran organizations and fhe National Association of Life Underwriters are carrying on individuals investigations. The veteran organizations are the American Legion and the Veteran of Foreign Wars.

All three organizations were requested to study the situation by their Pottstown and Pennsylvania chapters after the disclosures by The Mercury.

MISSING GOLF BALLS

Mrs. Mildred A. Grady, 952 North Warren street, reported to borough police Monday night that she had seen two small boys taking golf balls from the driving range at Brookside County club on Washington Hill road. Patrolman Barry Rohrbach investigated.

and elevations on these streets so the school contractor can go ahead with the construction of curbs, sidewalks, parking lots and landscaping.

THE BOROUGH will drop the case against the Oscar and Lena Jackson liquor license, accepting the findings of the court. The court sustained a liquor control board approval of the Jackson's bar near the Bethany Recreation center.

Two nearly identical bids on curbing and sidewalk construction were returned to the highway-sewer committee for a recommendation on who will get the contract.

E. Lynwood Drumheller and the Twin County Construction company, bidding on a unit cost basis, were only pennies per unit apart.

One bidder was low on construction; the other was low on excavation and fill. The committee will attempt to determine which bid will work out lower in the long run.

THE ORDINANCE giving the borough the right to exercise its eminent domain over the properties at Adams and Jackson streets was explained by Borough solicitor C. Edmund Wells.

Former solicitor Victor J. Roberts began proceedings to get the land for the street tie-in more than two years ago.

Title clerks had a difficult time in telling who owned the land the borough wants, because all the properties have passed into estates, and several have no wills probated.

Wells said there are about six lots involved, on the east side of Adams street just north of Jackson street. When the road is built, a small triangle of land will remain to the north.

Its use must be expressed in condemnation proceedings, so it is tentatively labeled "recreation."

MOST OF the properties are delinquent in taxes, and liens have been placed, but since title searches were not successful, it is easier to condemn, said Wells.

Wells feels the awards provided by the courts and the liens may balance out, and the borough will "wind up with a better title."

In case the ownership cannot be traced, and there are no petitions for a jury of view and settlement, the borough can get the land by default.

The value of the land will be determined by the courts, and paid as fixed by law.

AN ORDINANCE was passed tightening up the borough's health laws and establishing fees for the periodic inspection of eating places.

Vaccination certificates, previously free, will be issued at a cost of $2.50 apiece. The restaurant inspections, done every three months, will cost owners $1 a visit.

The previous inspection fee was $1 a year, as set by the State when no other provisions are made by the borough.

The ordinance also outlines health requirements, inspection procedures and provisions for penalties.

The contracts awarded were:

For the 1960 street construction program, to low bidder John Mayes, Perkasie, at a base price of $92,998.99.

For the installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of the Route 100 bypass and West King street, to electrician Charles E. Snyder, low bidder at a cost of $2775.

Four new police cars to be purchased from the Keiser Chevrolet company, at a low bid of $3843 plus four trade-ins.

For a rotary driven air compressor to be used by the water department, the low bidder awarded the contract is the Indiana Farm Equipment company, at a price of $3750.

Six different suppliers were awarded contracts for various highway department supplies and materials. They include: Pottstown Trap Rock company, Leonard A. Swann, W. R. Croasdale, Pottstown Roller Mills, incorporated, the Eastern Line company and Shelley Concrete company.

ANOTHER ordinance will require and compel sidewalks and curbing, 30 days after the serving of notices, in a large area of town where property owners now have no curbs or pavements.

The borough will do the work, and levy all costs and charges plus 10 percent to all property owners who do not conform to the sidewalk notices.

The area where the work will be required is bounded by the Manatawny creek, Schuylkill river, Adams street, Wilson street, Farmington avenue and the north borough line, generally speaking.

Earl D. Bicer, Ninth ward Democrat, questioned if hardship cases, such as elderly couples without income" will be charged for the work.

He was told that everyone must have the work done, regardless of their financial circumstances. Wells reminded him, elderly people or not, rich or poor, the home-owner is liable for damages resulting from accidents where his property is not paved and curbed.

An ordinance was passed, opening for grading, paving, curbing and drainage, sections of four streets where real estate developers will pay 100 percent of the construction.

The streets are Master street east of Franklin street, Washington street from Mineral street to Mervine street, and portions of Clearview street and Spring street.

Another ordinance approved for construction, on a one third- two third basis, stretches of the following streets:

Master, York, Prospect, Beech, Hale, East, Warren and Washington streets.

THE RESOLUTIONS were:

To give borough treasurer L. O. Garner authority to transfer money from special funds or borrow money by temporary loan to pay bills.

To apply for county financial aid in the maintenance of streets.

To express the intention to ordain, lay out, open and pave Eighth street from Belmont street to Clearview street and Adams street from Jefferson avenue to Jackson street. Handbills will be posted announcing that a hearing will be heard on the measure at next month's council meeting, June 13.

To amend the master stop street ordinance establishing a three-way stop at South Evans and South street, to put stop signs on Evans street where it crosses Wilson street and Mineral street, and to put a stop sign on Master street where it crosses Evans street.

To amend the no-parking ordinance of 1943 establishing no parking on Plum street 110 feet north from South street, and on the east side of Eden street 37 feet south from High street.

To amend the same ordinance deleting the parking restrictions which were in effect on the south side of New street, from Franklin street to Evans street.

To relieve tax collector Charles S. Grubb from the liability for collecting occupation and personal taxes from persons who have moved or otherwise disappeared from the borough. It does not relieve the persons' responsibility to pay their taxes.

COUNCIL REPEALED two ordinances passed last month which vacated and closed a 161 foot extension of Johnson street from Reynolds avenue north into Highland Memorial park and a 20 foot wide alley running east from the end of the street.

Home owners along Reynolds avenue west of the unopened portion of Johnson street said Johnson street was their only access to a private alley at the rear of their properties.

Wells told council it has been the borough's policy to not close streets and alleys where the move will shut off the access to a private roadway.

Fifth ward Republican Charles M. Shaner and either Guy J. Sperat Jr. or Elmer Panoc, both Fourth ward Democrats were appointed to attend the State Borough's association convention in Pittsburgh June 26 to 29.

Bicer asked Council president J. Wayne Knause to appoint a committee to meet with representatives of the three Pottsgrove townships to discuss merger plans.

Knause, pointing out that "that's a little premature," said he would take the request under consideration.

John Hoffecker, Ninth ward Republican, reported sanitary sewers had been completely laid on Jackson and Grant streets, and work would soon be underway on Manatawny street, Farmington avenue, and the 700 block of High street.

J. Max Creswell, West ward Republican, reporting for the police committee, said Patrolman James Burton had submitted a resignation two weeks ago, effective immediately. Council accepted the resignation.

Bills of $37,404.26 were paid.

Television Teaching Described at Meeting

John E. Smith, art teacher for Pottsgrove Elementary schools, explained a new form of television teaching to the Men's Brotherhood of St. John's United Church of Christ, High and Price streets, Monday night.

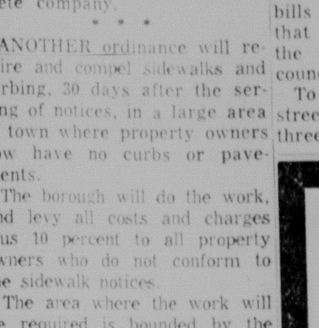

The new system—Telecore—allows the presentation of pictures and diagrams, prepared in advance, without the use of live performers.

A pointer is also integrated with the material for better readability, he said. He likened the system to a teacher pointing out things on a blackboard.

A long life may not be good enough, but a good life is long enough.—(Benjamin Franklin)

Closer to Home

FROM time to time, suggestions have appeared here that "meter maids" be employed in Pottstown to check the parking meters.

Reasons were many: Such employment would release able-bodied policemen for more active duty. . . Women were found in other cities to be diligent, conscientious and less prone to relenting on enforcement of the law. . . They aren't butts of loud complaints.

The city of Reading has hired four women to patrol the restricted and parking meter areas. It's one of the first experiments within such close proximity to Pottstown, and may give borough fathers a first-hand experience.

But the women have been most efficient in larger communities, and they'd do well here, it's believed, if given a fair chance.

Instead of wasting police manpower with tire-chalking duties, why not give women a chance?

Are Families Defaulting?

DOLLARS and cents were of prime importance to Pottstown's school directors last night. That's as it should have been. The budget's of great importance. They also discussed buildings. That's important, too.

But what besides these very important matters should school directors here, in the Pottstown area and beyond, consider. For instance, we profess a certain feeling of morale outrage at the anti-family policies of Russia and red China. Soviet state nurseries and Chinese communal care of children bring forth indignation.

We generally look with hostility on any systems which remove children from the influence of their family.

Yet sometimes, surveying the contemporary scene, one must wonder "influence for what?"

Secular education has long since been turned over to the schools. Few people any longer try to coach their offspring in history, mathematics, literature, etc.

What, then, are our young people supposed to learn in the home; what is it that they get at home which makes it imperaive to preserve the family as a closely knit unit as free as possible from interference from the government?

One used to think it was manners and morals, usually based on some religious faith that young people learned at home. In fact, Americans have in the past been quite fiercely determined to keep this teaching preserve in the home.

But how real is the family's concern in this role? How real is the family's assumption of this responsibility?

The creeping growth of juvenile delinquency, the lack of purpose and idealistic roots among non-delinquent youths have fostered the conviction that schools must take a larger part in character building.

If there is indeed an urgent need for the schools to take a hand in teaching morality, if our families are failing (by default or sheer ineptitude) to give decisive moral direction to their children, then one must wonder what roles are to be left to the home as an institution.

Are the family's main, or even only functions now reduced to the biological and economic?

Price of a Stable Dollar

SYLVIA Porter, a leading syndicated writer on financial topics, says: "The United States dollar is among the most stable currencies in the world.

"Its reputation in the great money centers of the globe is far higher than it was a year ago, far higher than you might suspect."

Later on, Miss Porter explains this change for the better in these words: "Why the shift in the dollar's position? Primarily, it reflects the fact that inflation in our land is well under control. Inflations simply do not thrive in a country with a balanced budget, credit restraints, ample plant capacity, plentiful supplies of goods, fierce competition. All these conditions exist in the United States."

Current conditions, by and large, justify Miss Porter's optimism. But what is true today will not necessarily be true tomorrow—and will almost certainly not be true tomorrow if we sit back, regard the inflation problem as solved, and let down our safeguards. The estimated budget surplus of $4 billion, for instance, could be wiped out and replaced with a heavy deficit if Congress should pass any appreciable number of the welfare state bills now before it.

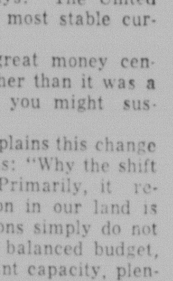

The price of a stable dollar, like the price of freedom, is eternal vigilance.

PUNKIN CORNERS,

Editor, The Mercury,
Dear Sir 'n' Brother:

Wal, I see by the papers where Georgi Malenkov, former Russian premier now in the Kremlin doghouse, has been transferred as boss of one Soviet power station in Kazakhstan to another. One with less power, no doubt.

The soon-to-be sweet girl graduate is looking hopefully toward her diploma with almost as much eagerness as she is toward the graduation gift that should accompany it!

And say: Got cold feet? Try sprinkling mustard in your socks, advises a medical column. The stuff's good on hot dogs, too.

Hopin' you air the same,

3 Ways to Discourage Sharp Practices

Advice Is Given

To the Editor: In regard to C. C. G's letter "How to Irritate a Customer," Readers Say, May 7:

I, too, have had trouble on various occasions, although, I am happy to say, not in Pottstown. Therefore, I would like to suggest the line of procedure that I would follow in trying to get satisfaction:

1. If the merchant is a local one, I would contact the Chamber of Commerce. No Chamber of Commerce will condone such treatment as C. C. G. alleges to have received.

2. Write a letter marked "Personal" to the president of the company that manufactured the shoes. If you do not know the president's name, ask an official of your bank to look it up, also the correct address, in his copy of Poor's directory of directors.

3. Get in touch with the nearest office of Better Business bureau. (For Pottstown, I believe that would be Philadelphia.) In case you are not familiar with that bureau, that is a national organization supported by reputable business merchants and manufacturers to protect their customers against just such sharp practice as you describe.

I have had to enlist their help several times, and they have never failed to get me satisfaction.

Pottstown HELPFUL

Says There's No Hope

To the Editor: Saturday's Readers Say column had a complaint by a customer who was treated shabbily and discourteously by a shoe proprietor.

If it is the same one who glibly guaranteed satisfaction on a pair of $25.95 shoes I purchased, she will never get anywhere.

The Chamber of Commerce couldn't do anything with this man who acts like he is doing business by decree.

He is an ill-mannered boor and a disgrace to the other merchants.

I complained the second day I wore the shoes, but to no avail. No adjustment, no return and no manners.

Your complainant will get nowhere. He will give her a runaround.

Still Some Hope?

To the Editor: Thank you for printing the shoes letter.

My contention was the width of the shoe. At no time in her life has the child worn less than a C in width. These were a B.

When a shoe is too narrow, one has discomfort for the duration of the shoe. I know from experience.

I took the fitting for granted and did not check on it. He has my shoes and my $8.95.

I have been taught to check and double check all purchases. All is not in vain.

Royal Wedding

To the Editor: The wedding of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones is an exhilarating event in all circles of people, including poets, philosophers, bartenders, judges, beauty operators, machinists and lady bridge players.

Love conquers them all, especially when a he-Cinderella actually comes to life.

The celebration appears to be a marvelous mixture of the royal and the democratic, with the playboys and girls from Chelsea in tune for the moment with dukes and archbishops.

Joy is unconfined, what with the empire safe, Cupid enthroned, and worry over Margaret's future at an end.

Having never recovered from reading "Graustark," I share this gladsome thrill. May they live long and happily.

The Voice of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

(Editor's Note: Dorothy Kilgallen is in London for the wedding of Princess Margaret. Her guest columnist today is Edward Fields, who makes carpets for international celebrities.)

Edward Fields Writes

AS A CUSTOM rug manufacturer I must confess I am frequently floored by the odd requests, odd situations and sometimes odd people I encounter in my day's work.

My business is mostly a sane one: people who want decorative rugs order them, custom-loomed, from me. But I've received many orders that have definitely not been sane or routine.

We use a patented machine we have named "The Magic Needle," and we can literally reproduce any design, painting, or caricature in our carpets.

Knowing this, a friend of Jerry Lewis brought me a caricature of Jerry and asked me to reproduce it in a 12-foot circular rug.

It was then sent to Jerry as a gift. A few months later I met Jerry and he enthusiastically shouted, "I want 100 more of those rugs with my face in it to send to some friends.

I REFUSED the order. Why? They would have cost Jerry $100,000, and I didn't want to embarass him, by telling him they would cost that much.

Then, too, as much as I like Jerry, I just couldn't saddle myself or my employes with the boredom of making nothing else except Jerry Lewis' face in a rug for two or three weeks.

Instead, I made six smaller sized rugs containing his caricature, and sent them to him as my gift.

I have matched the blue of Jane Froman's eyes in a rug for her house. Another time I had to exactly match the color of a faded blue girdle.

Once a designer had great difficulty explaining the exact color she wanted for her customer. She suddenly pointed to my dog Koko, who's a pinkish brown, and shouted, "That's it." So, we snipped off a lock of Koko's hair and sent it to our factories, where it was reproduced.

TOMMY MANVILLE'S mother used to occupy a half-floor suite in a swank east side hotel. She had 35 pedigreed Pekingese dogs.

Each year she would order new, and very expensive carpeting, to replace the one installed the previous year, which had become chewed, spotted, and generally ruined by the dogs.

She was a most kind hearted woman: She had me cut out and rebind the usable sections of the old carpeting, and gave them to her servants as gifts.

When the late Robert Young was head of the New York Central railroad, he ordered a rug for his private railroad car.

After the rug was installed the car was placed in a water shed for washing. Too late it was discovered that the car had a leak. The incoming torrent of water ruined a good portion of the freshly laid carpet. Young had the leak repaired and I made a new rug.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

DOROTHY L., aged 37, has a very common marriage problem.

"Dr. Crane," she began tearfully, "I don't know what to do about my husband.

"He used to be so wonderful! In fact, for the first 10 years our marriage was ideal.

"And he was fine daddy for our two children. Then he suddenly developed the habit of going out to a tavern in the evening.

"He would get drunk and stagger home at any hour from midnight till morning. Sometimes he didn't even come home at all!

"I am so nervous and worried, I have lost weight and now my parents say I ought to divorce him.

"But I hate to desert him, especially if there is anything I can do to help him. When he is sober, he cries and asks my forgiveness.

"DR. CRANE, what should I do? Please, oh please help me!"

Why do you readers think Dorothy's husband ducks out after dinner and stays away till he is drunk?

If you've read this column very long, you know it isn't liquor that attracts him, but Dorothy who repels him! But why should his wife scare him so?

In the usual case of alcoholism, the victim is running away into drunken oblivion to avoid facing a "burning" inner problem that humiliates him.

In psychology we compare alcoholism to the "fire escape" from a flaming building. And its cure consists not of tearing down the fire escape, for then the victim may figuratively "jump" into drug addiction, insanity or even suicide.

NO, THE wise cure of alcoholism consists of putting out the "inner fires" that torment the victim.

So why should a previously devoted husband suddenly grow afraid of his wife in the evening?

Because that is the time a husband will soon be expected to retire to the bedroom with his wife.

And why should Dorothy's husband fear their marital bedroom?

Because he has grown so worried over waning erotic vigor that he has thrown himself into a platonic condition!

But men "burn" inside with shame and humiliation at the thought of being impotent. They dread having their wives' guess that such a reason explains why they no longer show affection.

You can see how effective this red herring really is, for Dorothy hasn't the slightest idea what drives her mate into nightly drunkenness.

So the whiskey flask has neatly sidetracked her mind and caused her to worry about her mate, when he othewise figured she'd lose all interest in him if she knew he was totally platonic!

Wives, please get hep to simple marital psychology and prevent this all too common American tragedy.

Inside Television

By EVE STARR

LAS VAGAS, Nevada: Sid Ceasar, well-known on television for his comedy artistry, his satires, his pantomime and his monologues, chose the Riviera hotel here for his first night club appearance in many years, "at least twelve," he said thinking out loud.

Now 37 years old and looking like a snappy 29, Sid is at the top of the heap.

He is one of the most respected comedians in the business, and such masters of laugh techniques as Milton Berle, Jack Benny, George Burns and Bob Hope have, at one time or another, expressed the greatest admiration for his unique style, his originality and his versatility.

As has Red Skelton, so has he the knack of peopling the stage with characters created out of his imagination, and as Red, can he, at will, make these characters come to life to bring us laughter and fun, and even a tear or two.

"EVERY COMEDIAN wants to play Las Vegas," Sid said, "It's a trend, like every actor wants to make a picture in Europe.

I couldn't do it before because I was tied up with a weekly TV series. Now I've readied two 90-minute specials for CBS one already telecast Thursday and the other June 2, and I'm free—well not really free, I'm doing my musical revue here for six weeks.

What I mean is I'm not tied down to a long-term weekly series, and I don't plan to be either. It's just too tough perfecting fresh skits every week. I'll do six or seven specials next year, and maybe take this show on a night club tour, or play it on special engagements like Jack Benny does,—if anyone asks me."

SID HAS brought his own show into the Riviera, and in keeping with the hotel's anti-nudity policy, he has written, produced, and directed his musical revue with an alert eye to fine entertainment, and nary a blue joke in the entire show.

He opened the past Monday to a packed room (some 700 people) an audience of well-wishers, many of them TV fans of Caesar's.

He opened the revue with the June Taylor dancers, 16 lovelies you may remember from the Jackie Gleason show, or Patti Page's "The Big Record" series.

They did three distinctive numbers that created a modern mood. Beautifully costumed, the girls in their dance interpretations and beauty of performance gave credit to their established reputation as television's finest dance group.

Interpreting The News

Khrushchev Handed Excuse for Failure

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The United States has handed Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev an excuse for failure at the summit just when he may be looking for one, and just at a time when the terrible danger attending the arms race has once again been paramounted.

As for the exact situation regarding the plane incident, a number of questions remained to be answered. Some of them, involving espionage practices, may not be answered at all.

But one result is clear. An important weapon on the allied side in the cold war has been the reputation of the United States for trustworthiness. That reputation has been damaged by the devious and speculative first attempts to explain away the Powers flight.

At the same time, the long-standing charges against Soviet trustworthiness have been dulled.

America's allies now are expressing feeling's about her closely akin to the one she expressed against Britain and France in the Suez matter in 1956.

They are afraid her position at the summit table has been weakened just when agile leadership was needed.

They are afraid that her tactics may eventually start something that nobody can stop. They see lack of coordination between her policy makers and her defense agencies.

American aerial reconnaissance over the Soviet Union has been reported intermittently for years. With indications that the Soviets had not complained because they would not publicly admit an inability to stop it.

But reports of a rising curve of espionage activity on all sides have piled up this year. The FBI says Soviet spying has reached a peak in the United States and on the high seas. Japan, West Germany and all countries with important military establishments have experienced it.

New weapons are being developed on an almost daily basis, and new tables of military organization are being drawn as a result. Nuclear weapons can now be carried to war in small trucks.

No longer can military intelligence keep track of an enemy's plans merely by watching the way he deploys his troops and airplanes. The once impossible constantly becomes possible, and high-tensioned fear is the result.

Amid such tensions, the Soviets see an American plane penetrate hundreds of miles into their territory, and the world asks "What could come next?"

If Khrushchev has wanted a summit conference merely for the purpose of putting the West in a hole in the cold war, his cause has been aided. But the danger of cold war and arms race has been newly highlighted. Perhaps fear can do something about stopping both.

ALL AROUND THE TOWN

Business to Shutter... Some Shrubs Around...

★ CASUALTY—Not just the big-time downtown merchants are feeling the pinch of the high cost of doing business and stiff competition. In contrast to the end of the large High street Food King market closing, a small, family operated grocery at 776 North Charlotte street will close this month. The S. and R. North End Food store will be going the way of many small businesses which cannot meet the merchandising facilities and volume prices of the supermarkets. The site will become a laundromat. The owners, operators and staff of the store are Lewis Rubin and his wife Alice, 775 North Franklin street; and Morris J. Schlosberg and his wife Mildred, of 70 South Mt. Vernon street. They "just couldn't make a go of it anymore" at the S. and R. store. . . .

THE RUBINS have no immediate plans, and the Schlosbergs are going to see if they can make a go of it at another site. They expect to operate a little grocery store on South street near Mt. Vernon, which the previous owner gave up because lack of business didn't allow the store to make even a small profit. The laundromat will be the Economat Laundry company, formed by Maurice Miller, the owner of the Philadelphia Dry Cleaners, incorporated, Miller said. "Schlosberg means 'locked mountain' in German, and Mr. and Mrs. Schlosberg are going to try again to open the locked mountain of success in the small grocery business."

★ WHAT'S 5TH DISEASE?—The fifth disease, which is waylaying scores of Pottstown youngsters, really isn't the "new" disease that many people think it is. The first epidemic of the fifth disease was pinpointed in 1889, notes Dr. Harry K. Marcy Jr., 604 High street. The literal translation of the fifth disease's technical name is just "infectious rash," But, said Dr. Marcy, a rash outcrops with many, many diseases from malaria to undulent fever to pneumonia. It therefore takes an expert to understand the symptoms. Physicians, in fact, have a tough time diagnosing rashes, said Dr. Marcy. To help them, a list of different rashes that look alike has been compiled. The fifth disease, naturally, is fifth on that list. While there was conjecture about the exact listing of other rashes, two recent medical books put them in this numerical order: measles, scarlet fever, German measles, Duke's disease, infectious rash, and exanthem subitum—a fancy name for a rash preceded by a three to five day fever.

THRIVING — Of course, there are "shrubs" still around here, only youngsters don't know about them! The once popular decorative bush bears an aromatic blossom, this column pointed out the other day. Mrs. James Marquette, 518 West Cedarville road, says she has had such a bush in her yard for 10 years. Right now it's loaded with blooms! . . . Cyrus Ecker, president of the Pottstown Junior Chamber of Commerce, led a delegation to the 21st annual convention of the Pennsylvania Jaycees in Philadelphia. With Ecker were James Bennetch, Steve Surman, Dr. Brower Yerger, William Heydt, William Leveille Jr., Newstell Marable, Robert Cannell, Gilbert Lewis, Albert Strothers and Richard Heylmun.

She will receive a degree of bachelor of science in music education. . . . Sgt. Martin L. Wambold, formerly of Stahl's Trailer city in Pottstown RD 3, but now in Europe with the U.S. Army, postcards from Amsterdam, Netherlands, that he's having a nice time in Holland. Kreps is a graduate of North Coventry High school and is a junior at Manchester.

Your Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

RECENTLY I wrote a column about the widespread use of the artificial kidney.

Then it dawned upon me a short time later that relatively few of you know much about your own kidneys, let alone the artificial variety. So let me try to explain a little about these all-important organs today.

Our lives depend upon the maintenance of a definite chemical formula within our bodies.

For example, the liquid within our bodies must remain at a set pattern.

Yet we are constantly eating, drinking and of course, breathing. This means the formula is continuously being unbalanced. And too many or too few of the components actually act as poisons.

Seems the balancing process would be quite a problem, doesn't it?

Well, it is, but the problem is solved easily and efficiently by the kidneys, the half-pound organs which daily filter out and reassemble almost ten times the entire body weight in water and salts.

Let's take a close-up look at the kidneys.

Take both of your firsts and clench them together. Now try to imagine 138 miles of tubing compressed into those two fists.

This tubing comprises 4,000,000 units, half of them tubes and half of them tufts. The tubes are a mere three-thousandths of an inch thick. The tufts are pinpoint-sized.

These, then, are the kidneys, the all-important kidney-bean-shaped organs located right in the center of your body.

They manufacture chemicals as well as acting as a filter system. But let's stick to the filtering process.

The tiny tufts filter about 300 quarts a day. All but about one quart are taken back in by the kidney tubes. They select the chemicals needed by the blood.

The remaining excess is sent to the bladder and excreted from the body.

Simple, huh?

Only two of 34 schools had lower head girls basketball coach salaries, and only one school was lower than Pottstown in hockey coach salaries.

HOFHEINZ SAID the committee came up with minor changes.

William H. Yohn, committee member who was absent when the committee met, asked if Hofheinz was planning to make a motion to accept the changes.

Hofheinz said, "we are waiting for the questionnaires to be returned. These are only suggestions to the board."

At this juncture, H. Bert Shaw, president, said "we were trying to raise our position and save our face by bringing our coaches salaries up to a standard."

"We will have another meeting as soon as we can," Hofheinz said.

"As long as you are going to study this, I'll be happy to study it with you," Yohn said.

ANOTHER Committee meeting was scheduled for May 23. Hofheinz said he expected answers to the questionnaires later this week and said, "we want to get information on how many pupils a coach has and the extra time he spends with them."

Earlier in the meeting the board agreed by a four to three vote that beginning wtih the current school year the pupils on their annual class trip shall visit certain places.

Sophomores would go to Gettysburg, Juniors to Washington, D. C., and Seniors to New York City.

Havard E. Fosnocht, superintendent, said pupils at a meeting of representatives of the various school cabinets, together with their sponsors approved the motion unanimously.

YOHN VOICED the opinion that the pupils every year should be allowed to chose for themselves where they wanted to go.

"I don't think it's fair to tell them where they have to go and I'm against dictating to them," he said.

It was also voted to eliminate the drill teams in the school district. The motion was made to do away with the team in the high school, but later changed to include the entire district.

Property evaluation was set by the State at $89,031,900. This information came in a letter from Harrisburg following an appeal by the school board for a lower rate.

The letter states, "based on an assessment analysis by type of property, the above assessment ratios would produce an aggregate market value of almost $93 million. The State Tax Equalization board market value in question is but little more than $89 million."

the door to door type and were a little persistent but no trouble. My friends told me to expect it," Miss DeWan said.

NANCY BOUGHTER, 356 Chestnut street, said only one salesman was really insistent on selling her something.

"He kept coming back after I told him I didn't want to buy anything. He said he thought I might change my mind. He sounded as if he had to sell me something," she said.

"I was a little annoyed at all the selling and mail because I didn't have much time since I only have one day off a week. And the salesmen only came when I was here," Miss Boughter said.

Miss Boughter, who is getting married June 12, added that she had most of her things anyway and "I would rather buy from a store in town than a door to door salesman."

ONE GIRL who admitted she fell for the sales pitch is Patricia Missimer, 1391 Kutz drive. She said one door to door salesman high pressured her and "I fell for it. I bought some pots and pans.

"He began by telling me he wasn't a high pressure salesman then he turned into one. But I didn't mind. It was sort of fun," she said.

Miss Missimer, a June 25 bride, said she received bridal advertising mail from Reading, Phoenixville, Birdsboro and Pottstown, and one Pottstown store sent me a gift," she said.

Virginia Dorner, 610 North Evans street, who is to be married May 28, said she had visits from three door to door salesmen at one time.

"Two men were in trying to sell me something and another knocked on the door. My mother took care of that. He was sent away."

"I had a set of pans given to me and when I told this pan salesman that, he said I should have two sets," she said.

Miss Dorner said all the sales pitches and pounds of mail advertisements "didn't bother me. I sort of expected it and I have most everything, so I just sent them away."

1960 Job Picture For Seniors Is Evaluated By State Office

be graduated this June from the following high schools: Pottstown, St. Pius X, Upper Perkiomen, Schwenksville, Boyertown, Pottsgrove, Owen J. Roberts, and Spring-Ford.

WHAT PARES the number of graduates wanting work are pupils entering college and the armed forces.

The average for college acceptance in the Pottstown area seems to be 20 percent of the graduating class. The percentage climbs when pupils attending business schools and trade institutes are counted.

In Pottstown, for example, 35 percent of graduates go on to higher learning. The figure ten years ago was just 20 percent, noted Stanley I. Davenport Jr., principal.

Of 225 pupils expected to be graduated in June, Davenport estimated 85 percent soon will find jobs, go to other schools or enter the service.

He continued that pupils who find it easiest to get jobs are commercial graduates.

CLAYTON WEAVER, guidance counselor in Schwenksville Union High school, said 90 percent of his 40 Seniors will work or take advanced studies.

He estimated that 37 percent of Schwenksville graduates will continue their education. Weaver backed up principal Davenport's view of commercial opportunities by declaring, "The outlook for business jobs is most encouraging in our area."

Forty percent of graduates at Owen J. Roberts will continue their studies.

Other statistics from that school reveal seven boys will go into the Armed Forces, 21 pupils definitely have jobs, 47 are looking for employment on their own and 30 are seeking work through the State employment service.

THE POTTSGROVE jointure will graduate 52 pupils and send a quarter of them to college, said Mrs. Ruth Hochstetter, guidance counselor.

While just 10 percent of Seniors definitely have jobs, Mrs. Hochstetter termed the employment outlook as "encouraging."

Pay scales, according to several persons close to the hiring scene, will average about $40 to start in an office and about $50 in a factory.

Mrs. Miller notified The Mercury about the 12th robbery in 14 years at a service station at Routes 100 and 401, West Vincent township.

Burglars were determined to enter the property, that appears to be a favorite target for thefts. This time they tore off the back door of the station owned by Edward P. Loomis, Glenn Moore, RD 1.

GEORGE NEIFFER, secretary, will report the financial structure of his community to C. C. Collings and company, the bond counsel for building sewers.

North Coventry supervisors, it was noted, have kept their township free of debt.

George Shaner, township engineer, pointed up that streets must be ordained before sewers are laid. An ordinance to adopt all township streets will be drawn. The work might cost $1000 plus legal fees.

A fire prevention ordinance will be considered next month, when experts on the subject will give their views to supervisors.

BIDS FOR a vast road building program will be sought soon and opened June 3.

Parts of the following thoroughfares will be resurfaced: Miller road, Kulp road, Hawk road, Laurelwood road, Temple road, Keim street, Unionville road, Shenkel road, Urner street, Evans road, River road and Hoffecker road.

The intersection of Route 83 and Keim street will be rebuilt, pipes will be installed on Cold Spring road.

Money for construction will come partly from a $7000 grant from Chester county and $8000 in State aid.

SUPERVISORS will contact Pottstown officials to see if a joint complaint about conditions on the South Hanover street bridge can be filed with the State.

The supervisors also changed the name of Irvin lane to Urner street, and voted a pay raise to James Batdorf, highway superintendent. Batdorf will get $2 an hour plus six paid holidays a year. Other highway employes will get the paid holidays.

T. Henry Boyer, 254 South Hanover street, resigned from the township's planning and zoning commission.

Cuba Releases Two Newsmen

HAVANA (AP)—Richard Valeriani and Tony Ortega, correspondent and photographer for the Associated Press, were freed today by Cuban military authorities after being held incommunicado for 40 hours. Valeriani is a U.S. citizen, Ortega a Cuban.

"They just told me I could go," Valeriani said immediately after his release. "They would give me no indication why we had been held nor would they tell me anything more."

Valeriani, 27, is from Burlington, N.J. He and Ortega were picked up Saturday night after they had covered a riot between pro-Communists and anti-Communists at Havana International Airport. A number of other newsmen and photographers detained at the same time were freed a few hours later.

Release of the two came a few hours after U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal sent a formal note to the Cuban Foreign Ministry asking for clarification of the case. Embassy officials were rebuffed in several earlier attempts to see Valeriani.

Valeriani has been working in Cuba since last September. He was held by Cuban police for seven hours after covering an explosion aboard the French munitions ship La Coubre in Havana last March.

Clear Sailing Seen In Completion of Area School Work

lector, were approved without exception by the board. The exonerations exempt $555 per capita and personal taxes and $202.50 occupation taxes from the budget.

In another tax matter the board hired William Davis as successor to the late Clarence Godshall as transfer tax collector. Davis is employed in the county courthouse, Cope pointed out, and this means "he is in a position to see the land transfers and to collect the tax."

In a series of personnel actions the board re-elected or reappointed the following for the 1960-61 fiscal year: Ernest F. Royer, treasurer, at $300 per year with $5000 bond coverage; Dr. Ivan Hess and Dr. LaVerne Junker, school physicians, at $500 per year; Dr. M. Donald Markley, dentist, at $6 per hour for examinations; the legal firm of Pearlstine and Solkin, Lansdale, as solicitor at $500 per year.

A faulty roof on the high school building that Cope said has cost an average of $400 per year for repairs over the past six years drew serious consideration by the board.

Cope indicated the problem involved when he said, "To get a good, 20-year bonded roof, it would probably cost us between ten and twenty thousand dollars." The board authorized preparing of specifications for the repairs but withheld financial approval for the present.

In a plan originated by Cope and expected to save more than $100, the board granted its okay for "splitting up" the school contracts for janitorial supplies and for general-art-duplicator supplies.

The total of $663 janitorial supplies are to be furnished by the All-Purpose Janitorial Supply company, North Brittingham and sons, F. W. Hoffman company, Industrial Sanitation, incorporated, and Zimmerman Paper and Supply company.

THE GENERAL, art and duplicator supply contracts, totaling $3897, went to Kurtz brothers, J. L. Hammett, H. C. Korner, Ditto, incorporated; Philadelphia Art Supply company, and American Reedcraft.

Cope was authorized to solicit three bids for purchase of new fire extinguishers—for the addition to the high school and for replacing carbon tetrachloride extinguishers now in use. The State has disapproved of the carbon tetrachloride extinguishers, it was indicated.

The board turned down a request of payment at 8 percent for remodeling of a part of the old high school annex done by the John S. Carver architectural firm, Philadelphia.

Payment at 6 percent of the construction cost was approved. Carver allegedly had increased his rate without notifying the school he had intended to do so.

Payment of bills totaling $13,588 was approved. The treasurer's report indicated that the budget was 84.2 percent exhausted with 85 percent of the fiscal year gone.

Faculty members again will be employed during the Summer at $1.50 per hour as the need for their services arises, the board decided. Cope pointed out that extra help will be needed for various projects throughout the Summer and for moving into the new addition in the Fall. The payments are not to exceed $2000.

A holiday schedule for custodians was established. All are to receive the following days off in the future: July 4, Sept. 5, Nov. 24, Dec. 24, 26 and 31, Jan. 2, Mar. 31 (afternoon only) and May 30.

A special meeting of the board has been called for Monday at 7:45 p. m. to approve finally the 1960-61 budget and tax resolutions.

Presto! Nice, clear, comfortable, cool weather will be with us, at least until Thursday night.

It will remain mostly cloudy this mroning, with a low of about 44. The highest reading today will be a pleasantly cool 60, under fair skies.

TEMPERATURES until the weekend will be 3 to 6 degrees below normal range of 51 to 71, average for these parts this time of year.

It will be cool and clear again tomorrow, with gradual warming Thursday and Friday. Showers are seen again about Thursday night, but its too early to say for sure.

The 2.08 inches of rain since Saturday night, added to the .34 of an inch which fell May 1, put May's rainfall at 2.42 inches, more than twice normal for the month to date, which is 1.04 inches.

The high Monday was 60, the coolest maximum since another high pressure ridge followed the storm the first of the month, when the high was only 58.

Psychiatrist Warns Hypnosis Can Be Dynamite In Hands of Inadequately Trained or Amateurs

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A psychiatrist warned Monday that hypnosis—potentially a powerful medical tool—is:

Dangerous in the hands of inadequately trained physicians and dentists;

Dangerous to doctors as well as their patients;

Still more dangerous as a toy in the hands of the amateur.

"Whoever plays with hypnosis is playing with dynamite," said Dr. Harold Rosen, chairman of the American Medical Assn's Committee on Hypnosis.

In the medical profession, there are very few physicians with adequate psychiatric training to use hypnosis safely, even to alleviate pain, the John Hopkins University researcher told a news conference at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Assn.

Furthermore, "no dentists I have personally come across" have had adequate training to safely practice hypnosis, although adequately trained dentists may exist, he said.

He cited these facts about hypnosis:

It takes only 25 or 30 minutes to teach a person how to put another in a trance.

A person can be hypnotized without knowing he is being hypnotized, standing up, lying down, sitting or in any posture. It is not necessary to put him to sleep with his eyes closed.

He can be hypnotized whether he wants to be or not.

Once hypnotized, attitudes or desires of which he is unaware in the conscious state, may be heightened and expressed.

Persons with serious mental or emotional disturbances can be hypnotized and when hypnotized can be stripped of defenses built to repress those disturbances.

Hypnosis can be a valuable tool in both psychiatry and medicine, Dr. Rosen said — but it must be taught in medical schools along with necessary courses in psychiatry.

These courses should train the hypnotist to know what effect a hypnotic trance will have on this patient—and what the patient will think and feel when under the trance.

While some persons can be helped with hypnosis—either to alleviate pain or to control emotions or symptoms or for psychiatric treatment, some persons should be exempted from hypnosis.

He told of a man hypnotized for relief of a pain in his back who committed suicide by diving from a window several days laters.

He had focused on the pain and it had held underlying suicidal depression on leash, Dr. Rosen said. When the pain, or defense, was removed, the depression took charge.

He cited a young girl who was hypnotized to rid herself of the cigarette smoking habit. She then began to eat compulsively instead. She went to another hypnotist and was rid of the overeating habit, whereupon she began to drink excessively. When she went to another hypnotist to be rid of this habit, he was afraid to do so on the chance that she might take to narcotics or commit suicide. She finally was referred for psychiatric treatment.

The Austrian Interior Ministry asked the Polish Embassy to help clear up the disappearance.

Jet Airliner Crashes At Idlewild Airport

NEW YORK (AP)—A Trans World Airlines 707 jet from Los Angeles crashed today at Idlewild Airport when its landing gear buckled as it touched down. There were no injuries reported to the 109 passengers and crew.

It was the first crash of a pure jet in American domestic airline service. A Boeing 707 crashed several months ago on a test flight over Long Island.

Steel plates protect your savings from everything but inflation

Billions of dollars in cash and securities—even the nation's gold at Fort Knox—rest secure behind steel vault doors. Because they protect most of the country's liquid assets, bank vaults must be impervious to fire, flood, and earthquake. Yet 30-ton giants like the one above can be swung open with the flick of a secretary's finger.

Vault engineers have solved such knotty problems as controlling inside temperatures, so that when a fire is raging outside, the contents of the vault are protected from charring and blackening, remaining in perfect condition. High-quality steel plates, welded together in layers, reduce heat pass-through to a minimum.

If you should be locked inside by mistake, it's rather easy to get out, but just about impossible to get in—unless, of course, you have the combinations. And bank robbery—when the steel vault doors are shut and locked—belongs strictly to the world of television.

Vault doors like the one shown above are made from steel plates rolled by Bethlehem at Sparrows Point, Md., the country's largest steel plant, and at Johnstown, Pa.

Steel plates have other important uses in shipbuilding, bridges, large-diameter pipe, storage tanks, freight cars, and heavy machinery of all kinds.

Treasurer Pays Taxpayer's Bill

MOUNT VERNON, Ill.—Walter Randall, treasurer of Jefferson county, Ill., gave up the whole thing and paid a delinquent landowner's 12 cent tax bill himself.

The county already had spent $2 for bookkeeping and eight cents for postage trying to collect. The taxpayer finally sent in a check for six cents, promising the second installment later. But the check wasn't signed.

"Enough is enough," grumbled Randall. He dug into his pocket and handed over a dime and two pennies.

Queen Gives Party

Elizabeth Not Exhausted But Feet Bother Her

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II invited me to Buckingham Palace Monday—me and 7,999 others.

We all went and saw a smiling, laughing Queen in bubbling good humor.

But her royal feet ached.

After Princess Margaret's wedding Friday, and all the parties connected with it, you'd have thought the Queen would be ready to drop.

"Your Majesty," sympathized one of the guests, "you must be exhausted."

"Not a bit," replied the Queen with a lovely smile, "but I must say my feet hurt."

The party took place in the garden of the palace and the Queen stuck constantly to the grass to favor her feet and never got on the hard gravel paths.

Just before 5 o'clock a downpour sent the sleekly-dressed guests scampering for shelter.

The Queen had already reached the royal tea tent.

The tent was the length of two football fields but it was very shallow so women were soaked by the hundreds as tail-coated escorts tried to keep three or four dry at once under a single umbrealla. The rain stopped after 15 minutes.

About 3,500 cars tried to deliver guests at the palace at about the same time and a monster traffic jam developed.

To add to the chaos, 20,000 sightseers clustered outside the palace and workers were busy trying to clear away the last debris from the crowd of a million that watched the wedding procession on Friday.

In contrast to all this was the elegant Queen, dressed in an aquamarine silk dress and coat. She also wore her South African pink diamond flower brooch and a matching hat. Her shoes looked just a trifle large. She may have borrowed a larger pair.

Servant, His Wife, 2 Daughters Are Left $160,000 By Widow

WILKES-BARRE, (AP)—A 48-year-old domestic servant and his wife were left $100,000, the will of an 82-year-old widow showed Monday. Their two daughters were given $30,000 apiece for their education.

"I'd rather have her with me, she was such a dear sweet woman," William Denmon said when asked how it felt to have such an inheritance. "We miss her so very much."

Mrs. John B. Wallis Jr., widow of a one-time county treasurer and prominent industrialist, left the Denmons the $100,000 together with her automobile and household goods. She also said Denmon should live in her five-bedroom, 12-room house in suburban Kingston at full salary for a period of not more than one year while looking for other quarters and employment.

Mrs. Wallis and her husband, who died 17 years ago, had no children. Denmon worked for her 20 years.

"I was a domestic," he told a newsman. "I would drive her car, serve her meals. She told me many times I was like a son to her, but never once did she hint that she would leave us any money in her will."

His wife, said Denmon, is a registered nurse and took care of Mrs. Wallis when she was ill.

"She was seldom ill, however," he said. "She was always so active, so full of life right up to the end."

Mrs. Wallis died May 2, following a heart attack.

Asked what he planned to do with the money, Demon said he and his wife would invest it wisely "as she would want us to do."

"We're not planning a vacation trip, or anything like that," he continued. "I have to live on this, along with what I can earn, and we will continue here in her home for the year while deciding what I am going to do."

The reaction of daughters Shirley Ann, 13, and Roxie May, 11, to their inheritance?

"She was always so good to us that it's pretty sad for them to understand," Demon said.

Mrs. Wallis also left $10,000 each to four cousins and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Simons and Clark Simons, Allentown; William S. Grase, Red Bank, N. J., and Edward Grase, Glenridge, N. J., and $10,000 to the Grace Episcopal church of Kingston.

Housewife Faces Secretary With Darned Problem

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of the Navy William Birrell Franke and a housewife from Santa Ana talked over a problem yesterday: Darning socks.

Mrs. Joanne Ray wrote the Secretary in Washington about this problem:

Her ex-sailor husband, Robert, is so fond of his old navy shoes "that he keeps wearing them and they keep wearing out his socks."

So Franke sent Mrs. Ray a darning kit with this note: "If the Secretary of the Navy can darn socks, then so can Joanne Ray."

Mrs. Ray buttonholed the Secretary, who was in Anaheim to address the Navy League. Mrs. Ray, a modern housewife, told him she doesn't know how the darn darning needles darn.

There will be no fire sale of Loretta Young's dresses, the actress revealed.

"I keep my clothes ten years, sometimes 15," she said, "and then I have them remodeled. Sometimes I'm doing a role that goes back ten years and then I can use the old ones. I dress my roles out of my personal wardrobe."

By the end of the 1959-60 season Miss Young will have 139 different characters, and that's a lot of clothes.

PUC ORDERS TRAIN WINDOW SAFETY PLANS

Railroad Heads Must Appear By May 17

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility commission Monday ordered the Reading company and the Pennsylvania railroad to submit plans by May 17 for protecting passengers from death or injury from broken plate glass train windows.

The five commissioners unanimously adopted a resolution calling on heads of both railroads to appear before them and explain what can be done to eliminate the hazards.

The action stemmed from the death last Wednesday of Mrs. Bridget Lydon, 60, of Mount Airy, a Philadelphia suburb. An artery in her neck was punctured by glass fragments after two youngsters threw a stone through the window of the Reading company commuter train she was riding.

The commissioners issued a statement after a meeting saying they "deplored the death" of the woman. They voiced determination to take every reasonable step to protect passengers from such hazards.

They said an effort would be concentrated initially on passenger protection in the Philadelphia suburban area, scene of seven earlier incidents where train windows were shattered by sniper bullets, rocks and stones.

The commissioners said a number of passengers suffered eye, face and head injuries in these incidents.

The question of train windows was high on the commission agenda at its meeting.

The commissioners agreed that the PUC has authority to order safety precautions for commuters.

300 Persons Attend Recital

Three hundred music lovers attended the organ recital presented in Trinity Reformed United Church of Christ by John Weaver Monday night.

Weaver, who is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, played a program that included one of his own compositions.

The young artist, 22 years old, is now serving as organist at the Holy Trinity Lutheran church, New York City. He has presented numerous recitals in eastern United States communities during the past two years.

The recital was sponsored by the Senior choir of Trinity church. Marguerite Saylor is president.

Following the recital a reception was given in Buckwalter Memorial hall, sponsored by the choir mothers' group of the congregation. Those in charge included: Mrs. Melvin Unneberg, Mrs. John Henry, Mrs. H. Theodore Kemp, Mrs. Edgar Antrim, Mrs. William M. Antrim, Mrs. Howard Griswold, Mrs. Kenneth Bechtel, and Mrs. Malcolm DeWitt. Tea and coffee tables were under the direction of Mrs. Unneberg and Mrs. Henry.

The Rev. John B. Frantz, pastor, was in charge of the liturgical portion of the evening's program.

William J. Whitehead, minister of music, was in charge of the general committee for the event.

Moose Lodge Accepts Three as Members

Three men were accepted into membership Monday night by the Pottstown lodge 369, Loyal Order of Moose, Harry Wells, governor, announced.

The meeting was held at the Moose home, 320 High street. A discussion of the 50th anniversary on Nov. 2 was also held.

Northern Rhodesia Is Scene Of Violence Against Whites

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — Negro mob violence has flamed against white settlers in Northern Rhodesia, a part of Britain's Central African Federation.

Police held 127 Africans and sought others Monday for a series of fire and stoning attacks in the Northern Rhodesian copper belt over the weekend. Several persons were injured.

The sudden outburst led to speculation that a scheduled visit by Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth to the Federation—a union of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland in which 282,000 whites dominate a native population of 7½ million—will be canceled. She was due in Salisbury Wednesday for a 20-day tour.

A white woman and her two daughters were among victims of Negro bands on a rampage that recalled the nationalist-inspired racial troubles that the Federation government crushed with troops last spring. All three were burned.

Cars were special targets of the mobs. Mrs. Lillian Burton, 38, was driving with her daughters Rosemary, 12, and Debbie, 4. Police gave this account:

A band of about 30 blacks stopped the car at Ndola, the chief trouble spot. They stoned the car and, with all three of the Burton family inside, doused it with gasoline and set it afire.

Mrs. Burton was burned severely. The two girls were slapped and kicked by the Negroes, but escaped into the brush.

All three were hospitalized, as was a white man, W. Meyer. He reported he was attacked by about 40 blacks four miles from Ndola, who stoned his car.

Eight other white men reported their cars damaged in similar raids Sunday near Ndola. At Kitwe five white men said they were stoned in their cars or in the yards of their homes.

Rock was found piled on a railway track at Kitwe Friday. The pile apparently was intended to derail a train.

At Bancroft, near the Belgian Congo border, three shelters at a beer hall were burned down Saturday night.

At Luanshya police used parachute flares and tear gas to disperse a Negro mob rioting at a beer hall. The officers said they retaliated after the Negroes stoned them.

Police are investigating an attempt to burn the home of Francis Chembne, an African member of the federal parliament.

Police reservists were called in to help keep order and to prepare indictments against the suspects.

The district commissioner's office in Ndola reported a rush of requests by white men for permits to buy guns.

Seen a hospital bill lately?

This Mt. Airy housewife has . . .

Blue Cross has saved her $1,784.35 . . . and Blue Shield $365.00 more

"In just the last two years, Blue Cross and Blue Shield have saved us $2,149.35," says Mrs. Fred Johnson, of 326 Glen Echo Road, Philadelphia. "Actually, Blue Cross and Blue Shield have saved us additional thousands of dollars over the years. For since 1940, I've had to be hospitalized 17 times—5 times for major surgery—and on each occasion Blue Cross and Blue Shield rushed to our rescue to cover all, or the largest part, of the big bills. The point that impresses us most about Blue Cross is that it never cancels a contract because of repeated illness."

Yes, Mrs. Johnson, Blue Cross protects subscribers under the realistic terms of its contract, year after year—regardless of frequent and repeated hospitalization. And Blue Cross offers the actual service required, not just a fixed, limited amount of cash that may not come even close to paying for the cost of today's modern hospital and medical advancements. Some individuals go to the hospital once or twice in a lifetime. Others are in and out repeatedly. You just never can tell. So be sure with Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

New Banking Business to Open By October

Pottstown's newest banking business, the Red Hill Savings and Loan association, should be doing business here in a new, modern building by October.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth in Harrisburg has forwarded the Red Hill Savings and Loan-Pottstown Savings and Loan association merger papers to the State Banking department, and approval is seen certain within the next two months

The papers will return to the secretary, and the secretary's approval will make the merger automatic.

The merged association, with assets of more than $14½ million, will be known as the Red Hill Savings and Loan association.

* * *

OFFICES will be located here and in Red Hill, with business being conducted at the Pottstown company's 15 North Hanover street offices until the construction of new, larger quarters at the southwest corner of High and Evans streets.

John Storb, who will build the new offices, and provide new quarters for his Storb Travel agency next door, said he hopes to see the building completed during October.

Sanders and Thomas, architects and engineers, are completing the drawings of the structure, and the work will be out for bids shortly.

Demolition of the present structure on the site is expected to begin in the next few weeks, with construction beginning in June.

Sportsmen Group Authorized to Erect Warnings

The Northern Chester county Sportsmen's association was authorized Monday night to erect signs along two South Coventry township roads as warnings to fishermen.

The South Coventry road board gave its approval to the printing and erection of signs on Frogtown and Coventryville roads in the vicinity of French creek. The board met in special session Monday night.

The signs are to warn fishermen that they are responsible for keeping the highways open for fire equipment at all times.

The association had asked the board to assist in clarifying future policy with regard to parking of fishermen near French creek.

In a statement issued last night, the board said, "The Northern Chester county Sportsmen's association is in no way interfering with the official duties of this board or the police officer."

The question of parking near the creek arose on April 16 when township Police Chief Robert F. Conway fined 18 motorists for illegal parking.

Rhoads is with the publicity department of Freedom's Foundation, is a veteran of the Korean conflict, and vice president of the Hawaii Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Apartments Present Peculiar Problems

This often involves long and bitter battles with homeowners who object to the idea.

Zern also says the borough would invite the building of apartment houses if it would extend its sewage and water lines into the Lower Pottsgrove area.

* * *

ANOTHER BUILDER, Oscar C. Arndt, says he has wanted for years to see the construction of apartment buildings designed expressly for the use of widows or unmarried women. Arndt maintains there would be a tremendous market for such apartments. He says he has spoken with literally dozens of women "rattling around in big old houses by themselves" who would "like nothing better than to move into a nice, small apartment."

The problem is that there just aren't many nice, small apartments in the borough where a woman living by herself would want to settle down.

Arndt says he has seen apartment houses in Florida which take as tenants only unattached women. "The apartments are always full," he says, "and there's always a waiting list."

Arndt's contention that there would be a definite market for such dwellings is backed up by statistics showing that more and more women—most of them widows whose families have grown up and left them—living by themselves in the United States.

Another sure-fire market for such apartments, Arndt says, would be young married couples who don't want, or need, a large home.

Despite the fact he considers such dwellings a "vital need" and an "excellent investment," Arndt says few of the builders he has spoken to are willing to attempt the venture.

A SOMEWHAT more optimistic—although admittedly long-range—view of the problem is provided by William A. Griffith, builder and member of the borough planning and zoning committee.

Griffith maintains that Pottstown can be made into a vastly more desirable community by tearing down what he terms "near sub-standard houses" in the center of the borough and erecting in their stead attractive and well-built apartment houses.

"I'm talking about first class apartment buildings," he says, "not old homes that are converted into apartment dwellings."

"It takes time for these things," he says, "but the idea is not just a castle in the air. What we need is a group of shrewd investors who can see the possibilities in a carefully planned redevelopment program."

Griffith adds that the spark for the project must be provided by progressive, far-thinking public officials — including the planning and zoning committee.

"If we are to keep the older sections of town from deteriorating and finally dying," he says, "a program of this sort must be undertaken on a determined step-by-step, block-by-block basis."

Another builder, Stanley Swinehart, agrees with Griffith's contention that such a redevelopment program is of primary importance. But he warns that "a community has got to be careful that it does not tear down slums simply to turn around and construct new slums."

TWIN VALLEY BUDGET IS SET AT $659,193

Wayne Gable Re-elected Joint District Treasurer

The Twin Valley school board Monday night unanimously adpoted a budget of $659,193.76 for the coming school year.

The bulk of the money—$483,489—will go for construction purposes.

The remainder of the budget is broken down this way: general expenses, $17,810; auxiliary agencies, $85,313; operation of school plant, $60,900; maintenance; $1000; fixed charges, $40,300; capital outlay, $6,381.76.

The board approved payment of bills totaling $2981.70

* * *

WAYNE GABLE was re-elected treasurer of the joint school district.

It was announced that baccalaureate services will be May 22 in the new High school at Elverson. Commencement exercises will be May 25.

The hiring of Millicent Krapf as a business teacher was approved by the board. Miss Krapf, who will graduate from Penn State university in June, will begin her teaching duties next Fall.

Surveyors have been asked to submit bids for the laying of corner stones at the High school in Elverson.

The transportation committee reported that work on a highway in Honey Brook township will necessitate the rescheduling of bus routes in that area.

A committee was appointed to study the salary schedule in the school district and submit recommendations for changes and improvements.

The building supply committee announced that the Dacar Chemical company has been awarded a bid to supply chemicals for the treatment of boilers in the district's schools.

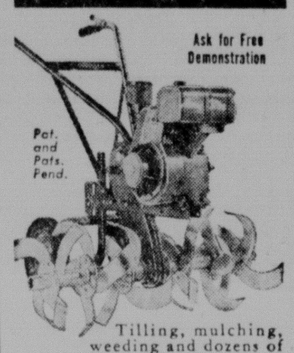

Albert Palmateer, president, was in charge of the meeting.

GARBER-MOBLEY MANUFACTURING CO. NEW AREA FIRM

One of the newer enterprises in the area served by the Pottstown Mercury is the Garber-Mobley Manufacturing Company located three miles west of Boyertown on Route 562. Mr. C. S. Garber is president of this corporation, although incorporated a little less than a year ago the company already enjoys a nation wide reputation. The company manufactures many types of sealants that are superior to ordinary caulking compounds, puttys, pastes, and glazing compounds. Some of the sealers which this manufacturer has to offer the local and national builders trade are in color. These products offer a new boon to the contractor for masonry sealing over cinder, concrete block and brick or other types of structure including corrugated iron. The Garber-Mobley Sealants are a good insulator against heat and cold. They can be used between wall and ceiling or floor structures to give excellent acoustical effect. A spokesman for the company has made the statement that Garber-Mobley Sealants can stand as high as 2000° Fahrenheit or can stand almost any temperature even as low as 32° below the freezing point. The Garber-Mobley people have sealants that expand and contract like no other sealer, that we know of, on the market today. The spokesman also told us that the Garber-Mobley Sealant is highly fire resistant and can almost be designated as fire proof, according to the standards of the American Society for Testing Materials. It will not support combustion and cannot be ignited at any temperature. (After it has formed a film, being exposed to chemical reaction with the air for approximately ten days.) The commercial type sealants can withstand temperatures up to 1300° Fahrenheit and will not release vapours which readily ignite. Wood or other combustible materials which might be enclosed within a layer of Garber-Mobley Sealant one half inch thick or more in thickness, would be rendered highly fire resistant by the protection of the sealant. The sealant of which the spokesman illustrated is a non-conducter of electricity, it would also act as an excellent duct-seal around electrical wiring and tubing or piping where such a product would be required by the Fire Underwriters. Our informant went further to explain the sound insulation qualities of their products and due to the inherent insulating properties of the materials used in its manufacture, the sealant possesses a high degree of resistance to the transference of sound waves. When properly installed as a continuous layer between suitable enclosing surfaces, the material will absorb rather than transmit a high percentage of sound waves, to which it might be exposed.

It is the thinking of some very smart people today that in the near future state laws might make it mandatory that all home owners, as well as all public buildings, build a fall out shelter. This would be in line with what Governor Nelson Rockefellow of New York State has been advocating for quite some time. When such fall out shelters are built they would, in all probability, be constructed of aluminum, cement blocks, and sealants such as the Garber-Mobley people now manufacture.

The sealants of the manufacturer are also applicable for highway and all public roads joint seal protection, as well as for waterproofing, caulking, roof coating, sound deadening and acoustical plastic.

The entire group of the newly found corporation are as follows: C. S. Garber, H. B. Mobley, C. W. Garber, Kathryn Reigner, R. E. Garber, Eva Garber, and Catherine Mobley.

The photograph is a mobile unit for application of the company's sealants.

6th Grader, Ann Sharp Reigns as Queen Of East Coventry School May Day Fete

Ann Sharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp, Porter's Mill road, Pottstown RD 1 was crowned Queen of the May at festivities celebrating May Day at East Coventry Elementary school. Ann is a Sixth grade pupil at the school and was selected queen as result of poll of pupils. Runner-up, another Sixth grader, Linda Miller, was maid of honor.

The queen and her court entered the outdoor stage, situated on the front lawn at the school, while the school band played the "Washington Post March." Harry Dreger, another Sixth grade pupil directed the band. The stage had as its background the stone Memorial marker and was decorated with huge baskets of white and purple lilacs, tulips and bridal wreath along with other Spring flowers.

The queen was dressed in a full length gown of white organdy styled with a bertha collar fitted bodice and tiny sleeves. Other members of the court wore pastel shades of blue, yellow, lavender, aqua, pink and green styled like the queen's dress. All carried colonial bouquets of lilacs, tulips and bridal wreath with white streamers.

Attendants were selected two from each classroom: Joanne Peterman and Patty Keen from Fifth grade; Kathy Murray and Patricia Gibson from Fourth grade; Norma Freas and Debbie Mull from Third grade; Ruth Wiand and Janet Christman from First grade and from the combined First and Second grade classroom, Robin High First grade and Gail Peck, Second grade.

Michael Embody, Kindergarten pupil, was crown bearer and placed the crown of yellow flowers upon the queen's head at the beginning of the program.

Each classroom presented a song, dance or musical game for the queen and her court and the more than 200 parents and friends attending.

"May Song" was sung by the entire group of pupils at the beginning of the festivities. Kindergarten pupils, both morning and afternoon classes of Mrs. Helen Mower presented several singing nursery rhyme games, among them "The Children's Marching Song".

Mrs. Marian Scholten's First grade pupils did a Swedish game "I See You."

The combined First and Second grade pupils of Mrs. Leone Fryer presented an English "Riding Song". Girls wore artificial floral wreaths in their hair and boys had red crepe paper bow ties with their white shirts.

Members of the Second grade class of Mrs. Ruth Grebe wore yellow and aqua bands diagonally across their chests tying in a side sash for their number "Heel and Toe, an American folk dance.

Presenting another American folk dance was the Fifth grade. The girls were dressed in full skirted dresses topped with white ruffled bib aprons. They wore yellow, white or pink bows in their hair. The boys wore red or blue neckerchiefs with their white shirts and levis. Mrs. Irene Mayberry is their teacher.

An early American dance, the familiar "Skip to My Lou" was danced by Third graders of Mrs. Elizabeth Moniz. Girls and boys wore cowboy suits or neckerchiefs and levis. All wore cowboy hats.

Fourth graders of Therese McShane danced the Italian "Tarantella" for their part of the program. Girls wore white aprons and Italian style white scarves on their heads. The boys wore colorful neck scarves with their white shirts. Simulated sound effects of castonets were made by toy "crickets" which kept the rhythm for the number.

Several Sixth grade girls of William H. Fryer selected a "May Dance" for their part of the program.

The May Pole dance of English origin was presented by boys and girls of the Sixth grade. Ceremoniously, each pair of partners for the dance skipped to the center of the circle and unfastened a streamer from the May pole. As the dance continued, the streamers of lavender, white, yellow, pink, blue and green, were braided in the traditional fashion. The May pole was topped with lilacs.

As pupils left the outdoor stage, the band played "Our Director March." Other selections by the band were "Little Giant March" and "Semper Fidelis March."

Chairman of the program, Mrs. Leone Fryer was assisted by Therese McShane and Mrs. Helen Mowrer.

Miss McShane, music teacher, directed the dances and songs and accompanied them at the piano. This year, the piano was moved out onto the school lawn for the program. In previous years, it had been amplified.

Two new gowns were made this year by Mrs. Robert High and Mrs. Lewis Peck.

Flowers and arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Harold Diffenderfer, Mrs. John Sharp and Mrs. Richard Kochel.

Printed programs were distributed to guests.

C. Ray Woodland, is principal, of the school.

LEAVE IT TO THE FRENCH—Even so prosaic a dessert as chocolate pudding turns out fancy when prepared the French way. This is mousse au chocolat, a delightfully smooth concoction, served in demi-tasse cups.

Chocolate Mousse in Demi-tasse Cups, An Intriguing Dessert for Company

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
(Associated Press Food Editor)

It's a chocolate pudding, but what a difference. A few simple ingredients — chocolate, eggs, cream, sugar and flavoring—are all you need. Combined by a special technique, they make an out-of-this-world dessert.

We're talking about the French mousse au chocolat and pot de creme au chocolat. Both these sweets are perfect for a company dinner because they take to being prepared and chilled for three or four hours or a day ahead of serving.

The French have special little cups with covers into which the preparation is spooned and chilled; then it is served in the containers. These traditional cups are small because the chocolate concoction is rich; their covers are practical during the refrigeration that blends flavors and improves texture.

These small enchanting cups usually come eight to a set with their own matching oblong tray. But demi-tasse cups substitute beautifully for the French containers. Demi-tasse spoons are appropriate to use with either the covered containers or the small coffee cups.

The secret of making this dessert is to have the small chips of semi-sweet chocolate—a great American way of packaging that food—melted to just the right temperature for combining with the other ingredients. If you take care here, you will have the wonderfully smooth texture characteristic of mousse au chocolat and pot de creme au chocolat.

When our young married niece returned from a couple of years of living in Paris, she set to work to make mousse au chocolat. After tasting the dessert, one of her guests asked, "What are those interesting little nuts in the mousse?" The hostess managed a non-committal answer; she knew that the "nuts" were bits of hardened chocolate that should never have been there. She tells me that after that first experience, she caught on to the technique and produced marvels of smoothness.

Traditional as the French are, when it comes to things culinary, their recipes for the two chocolate desserts vary. Sometimes mousse au chocolat includes water instead of cream; sometimes butter is worked in. Pot de creme au chocolat is often a custard made with egg yolks and milk as a base.

Here is an American version of mousse au chocolat; it duplicates the dessert we enjoyed in one of the best small restaurants in Paris.

MOUSSE AU CHOCOLAT

Ingredients: 4 large eggs (separated), 1 cup (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, ¼ cup heavy cream, salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Method: Beat egg yolks slightly with whisk or fork. Heat chocolate in the top of a double boiler over hot (not boiling) water until about melted. Remove from hot water and stir rapidly until entirely melted. Add cream, dash of salt and vanilla and stir in vigorously; the mixture may look streaky at first but it will be blended by the end of the stirring. With electric mixer at once beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in sugar; continue beating, if necessary, to obtain straight stiff peaks. Fold chocolate mixture into egg whites until blended. Spoon into small French pots or demi tasse cups; put on covers or cover tightly with transparent plastic wrapping. Chill 3 or 4 hours or overnight. Makes 8 servings.

Note: One tablespoon of brandy or dark rum may be substituted for the vanilla.

A peddler's knowledge of vitamins

To sum it up . . . probably zero. The professional people who know about vitamins and nutritional supplements are doctors of medicine and registered pharmacists. The peddler's "knowledge" probably consists of a prepared sales talk which he memorized. Which may or may not give you all the facts. So, don't buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from door-to-door peddlers. Get them from a registered pharmacist who knows what he's selling—and gives you what you pay for.

Hoof Injury Sidelines Tompion for Preakness

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP)—Kentucky derby winner Venetian Way and runner-up Bally Ache will renew their feud in the Preakness at Pimlico in Baltimore May 21, but Tompion will skip the run for the black-eyed susans because of a hoof injury.

Isaac Blumberg's Venetian Way and Leonard Fruchtman's Bally Ache fly in the same plane to Baltimore Tuesday for the 84th running of the $150,000-added Preakness.

C. V. Whitney's Tompion, the even money favorite for the 1 ¼ mile Roses Gallop, finished fourth after a shoe was torn off his left forefoot during the race. The nails were torn through the hoof wall, Dr. Jock Jocoy, a veterinarian, said.

The winner of the Santa Anita derby and Blue Grass stakes was sent to Whitney's Lexington, Ky., farm for rest and recuperation. He may start in the $125,000-added Belmont, final race in the triple crown for three-year-olds, June 11.

* * *

"BILL HARTACK will ride Venetian Way in the Preakness," said trainer Vic Sovinski in putting to rest any thoughts that there was any chance of a change in jockeys.

"We'll go all the way and hope we can get the triple crown," the former baker from Kankakee, Ill., said as he prepared to leave by automobile for the Maryland city.

"That's a different kind of race track, with a lot of sand in it," said Sovinski, referring to the Pimlico strip. He raced there two years ago when Blumberg's Lincoln Road finished second behind Tim Tam in the Preakness after being runner-up to him in the Derby.

"I want to get Venetian Way up there and gallop him over the track so he can get the feel of it. I'd like to find a race for him at Pimlico the Saturday before the Preakness."

IT WAS reported from Baltimore that the Preakness prep, a 1 1-16 mile race usually run on the Monday before the big one, had been shifted back to next Saturday, May 14.

Sovinski wouldn't hazard a prediction on his chances of making the triple crown sweep. Only eight horses have done it, the last being Citation in 1948.

Major Sluggers Drag Feet in Home Run Derby

NEW YORK, (AP) — Mickey Mantle of New York, Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee, and Rocky Colavito of Detroit are high on the list of sluggers dragging their feet in the Major league home run races.

Mantle has hit only one homer in 16 games. Mathews, last year's National league champion with 46, has three in 16 games while Colavito has three in 15 and none in his last 11. In the same number of games a year ago, Mathews had eight, Colavito four and Mantle three.

And that's not all. Harmon Killebrew, who shared the American league crown with Colavito with 42 in 1959, has walloped only two. However, the Washington star has been sidelined with a leg injury. Willie Mays of San Francisco also has two. And Charely Maxwell of Detroit, a 31-homer contributor for Detroit last year, has yet to hit his first this season.

The leaders through Sunday's games were Willie McCovey of San Francisco with eight in the National league and Woody Held of Cleveland with six in the American. Each slammed one homer in last week's games.

WHILE MAYS has been lagging in homers, the Giants' star continues to pace the Senior circuit in batting. He had seven hits in 21 tries last week and his average tailed off to .425. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Tony Curry of Philadelphia are deadlocked for second place at .385 followed by Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, .369.

Roger Maris of New York climbed into the American League number one spot on the strength of a 10-for-17 (.588) performance last week that increased his average to .458. Teammate Bill Skowron is in the runnerup position at .400. Then come Pete Runnels of Boston .396 and Jerry Lumpe of Kansas City, .382. Lumpe, the leader a week ago, has managed only two hits in his last 17 times at bat.

Score Hopeful, Happy With Pale Hose, Al Lopez

NEW YORK, (AP)—One victory doesn't constitute a comeback and nobody knows it better than Herb Score.

But the erstwhile strikeout sensation of the American league is happy, hopeful and at home.

The reason is one man, Al Lopez.

"Al understands me," said Score Monday. "He knows my problem. He's helping me."

WHEN SCORE was floundering around with the Cleveland Indians earlier this season, after an equally frustrating last half of the 1959 campaign, he asked to be traded to the Chicago White Sox, where he would be under Lopez, his old manager. Cleveland general manager Frank Lane complied, getting Barry Latman, a young right-hander, in return.

After two fruitless starts under Lopez, Score last week came through with six scoreless innings against Washington to register his first victory in nearly a year. He walked but two.

How did he feel about it?

"I'm not overwhelmed," he said honestly. "I wouldn't call it a comeback yet although I felt better than at any time this season. The tenderness I had in my shoulder appeared to be gone. I felt comfortable on the mound."

Score explained that in Cleveland they tried to get him to throw more overhand in the hopes that he would cure his wildness. When he came to Chicago, Lopez told him to throw the way he felt most comfortable, whether it was three-quarters, sidearm or overhand.

* * *

"AL TOLD me not to try to analyze anything, just throw the ball," Score said. "He made just one suggestion. He noticed that I was taking my eye away from the plate just before I made my delivery. He told me not to worry about it but to look at him every once in a while. If he rubbed his hand to his face, that meant I was taking my eye off the plate."

Lopez is convinced that Score will return to his winning form.

"I decided as soon as I got him that I was going to pitch him," Al said. "You can't learn anything on the sidelines. I would have forfeited four or five games, if necessary, to find out if Herb could still pitch. He's worth it. I think he's going to be an even better pitcher than he was when I had him in Cleveland."

Bear Thinclads Trip Indians By 67-41 Count

Boyertown's track Bears chalked up a 67-41 win over visiting Upper Perkiomen Monday at Boyertown.

The Bears notched seven and one-half firsts of 12 events on the day's card. Dick Roeder of Upper Perkiomen and Boyertown's Dan Reitmeyer both reached a high of 5-4 to tie for first in the high jump event.

Roger Mest was the lone double winner of the afternoon. The Boyertown speedster captured the 100-yard dash and came back to take the 220-yard run. Reitmeyer's tie in the high jump kept him from a sole double victory as the rangy Bear had scored an earlier first in the 120-yard low hurdles.

Bob Stringfellow helped Boyertown with the mile victory and a second in the 880-yard run. Ron Nelcher, of the Indians, was first in the 880.

Pascual Pegs Nats Past Kansas City 9

WASHINGTON (AP) — Camilo Pascual and Washington both snapped a three-game losing streak Monday night as they whipped Kansas City 8-1.

The Cuban curveballer, winning his first game since opening day, struck out 11 batters to run his total to 42, tops in the American League. Pascual allowed only three hits.

Washington collected 13 hits, including Jim Lemon's sixth home run and Bob Allison's second four-bagger. Both came with the bases empty.

Pascual, who led the American League in shutouts last season with six, missed a shutout in the third inning on an error by Billy Consolo. Dick Williams led off the inning with a single, moved to second on a passed ball and scored when Consolo threw wild after picking up Ken Hamlin's grounder, with two out.

The Senators bounced Kansas City starter Ray Herbert in the first, with three runs on two walks and singles by Dan Dobbek, Earl Battey and Reno Bertoia.

Washington added two more runs in the second on a walk, Allison's double and Lemon's home run. Allison was out trying to stretch his hit into a triple.

The Senators scored single runs in the fourth, when Bill Gardner was hit by a pitched ball and Dobbek doubled, and seventh, when Battey singled, Consolo walked and Gardner singled. Allison hit his home run in the eighth.

Mrs. Robertson Paid Tribute By US Officials

CINCINNATI, (AP)—The President of the United States, the governor of Ohio, and representatives of schools, labor and industry Monday paid tribute to Mrs. Mazell Robertson, mother of the "The Big O" of college basketball fame.

The Indianapolis Negro woman was honored, it was made clear, not because of her sons prowess as a basketball player at the University of Cincinnati, but because she kept him in school.

Oscar heard Judge Benjamin S. Schwartz read a message from President Eisenhower which said:

"Through congressman Gordon S. Scherer I have learned of the luncheon in honor of Mrs. Mazell Robertson. By encouraging her talented son to complete his college education and by her many sacrifices for him along the way, she has set an admirable example for parents throughout the land. Her deep appreciation of the value of education to each citizen and to the nation reveals a wisdom of the highest order. Please give her my congratulations and best wishes."

Judge Schwartz, who was master of ceremonies at the luncheon, said Mrs. Robertson kept her son in college in face of the offer of a large sum of money for him to turn professional last year.

"In Oscar we find one of the greatest, if not the greatest basketball player of his time, and with his distinction came fame and professional offers," Judge Schwartz said.

"This reached a climax last Summer when it was reported that the family was offered a large sum for Oscar to turn professional, which would mean the end of his college career.

"Though Mrs. Robertson needed this money, as it would give security for many years to come, with her burning desire that Oscar graduate and receive his degree she turned down the offer. Certainly this is a worthy example for this community and all of America to extoll.

'The luncheon planned not to honor Mrs. Robertson because she is Oscar's mother, but because of what she did for Oscar."

Governor Michael D. DiSalle also sent a message, saying in part:

"It is important to all that not only are Oscar's athletic accomplishments known to people, but that the part you have played is making them possible be also known.

'May I express in a very humble way, my appreciation, as governor of Ohio, for this fine example of good citizenship and your contribution to education.

Pottstown Hosts Conestoga Today In Crucial Test

The torrid race for the Ches-Mont league's Upper section gonfalon was cooled and slowed to a standstill Monday by an awesome combination of elements.

Intermittent rain and below-normal temperatures for May forced postponement of the important Conestoga-Pottstown collision at Memorial park and two other area Ches-Mont clashes of significant nature in the hectic flag fight.

Spring-Ford called off its visit to Boyertown and the Owen J. Roberts-Phoenixville affair at Bucktown also felt the brunt of the weatherman's blow.

In fact, Jupiter Pluvius spared no diamond involving area teams. Two Inter-County league frays and one in Bux-Mont and Berks Scholastic conference scheduling had to be left unsettled along with a Junior High tiff at Franklin field between Pottstown's Golden Cubs and West Chester Central.

THE TROJAN-PIONEER test has been re-slated for today at 4 o'clock and the Ram-Bear meeting is also on the agenda for today at 3:30 Owen J. Roberts and Phoenixville decided to wait until Wednesday at 3:30.

Bridgeport and Pottsgrove, washed out of their Inter-County tilt, will try again today at 3:30 at Pottsgrove. No official re-scheduling decision has been reached on the Schwenksville-Lower Moreland get-together, the second of the Inter-County rainouts.

The Pennridge-Upper Perkiomen, Bux-Mont league game at Pennridge is on for today at 3:30 and the Daniel Boone-Brandywine, Berks postponement has been re-set for Wednesday at Brandywine at 3:30. The Junior High contest will be played on May 23.

A deadlock for the Upper section could result form today's Ches-Mont play. Pacesetting Pottstown holds a one-game edge over the Rams. A Spring-Ford victory at Boyertown coupled with a Trojan loss at Memorial park would give the frontrunning clubs identical 6-4 marks.

In an effort to avoid crowded conditions at the choice position, Trojan coach Carl Kolanko will call on either Nick Preto or Ed Wanish, his southpaw aces, for mound duty against the invading Pioneers, who also cannot afford a setback if they are to keep in step with Coatsville at the head of the Lower section parade. Conestoga and Red Raiders own 7-2 cards.

Far From Madding Crowd

Roger Maris, the New York Yankee whose .400-plus batting average leads both big leagues, takes advantage of a day off by going for a quiet row on the lake in Central park, New York city, far from the noisy arena which is Yankee stadium.

Los Angeles Tops Bucs On Charley Neal Homer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charley Neal's three-run homer broke up the game in the bottom of the ninth and brought the Los Angeles Dodgers a 7-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Monday night before 23,417.

Reliever Elroy Face, who had a fantastic 18-1 record last year, served up the home run ball and took his third loss in as many decisions this year.

The Dodgers earlier scored two unearned runs as the fumbling Pirates committed four errors, running their total for five games to 15.

The Dodgers held a 3-0 lead going into the eighth but Bill Mazeroski made it 3-2 by slamming a homer off Don Drysdale with Al Smith aboard.

Los Angeles made it 4-2 in the same inning when pinch runner Tommy Davis scored from second on an error by first baseman Dick Stuart.

The Pirates tied it in the top of the ninth as Bob Skinner sliced a homer over the left field screen after Dick Groat singled.

Don Drysdale struck out 13 in 8 1-3 innings for the Dodgers but failed to get the victory.

The loss was the sixth for the Pirates in seven games.

The Dodgers got their first two runs in the fifth on singles by Norm Larker and Bob Aspromonte and a double by Don Demeter. Outfielder Bob Clemente committed an error in the inning, kicking Demeter's ball away from him, but both runs were earned.

A double error by shortstop Dick Groat set up the third Los Angeles run in the sixth. Groat bobbled Wally Moon's grounder for one error, then threw past first for another, permitting Moon to take second. Moon subsequently scored on Larker's second single.

Larry Sherry took over for Drysdale with one out in the ninth and retired the next two men. Sherry got the victory, his fourth against three losses, and third straight.

Vending Machines Looted At Manufacturing Plant

Officials of the Reyburn Manufacturing company, Royersford, Monday, reported three vending machines were smashed and all of the coin contents removed over the weekend.

Report was made to Police Chief Bryson M. Turner, who investigated. Turner believed it was two or more boys or young men who gained entrance Saturday or Sunday by breaking a small window in a door on the west side of the plant.

An ice cream cabinet was turned over on its side and bashed open. Stolen was $10 to $12.

A soda machine also was wrecked and an undetermined amount of cash removed.

The intruders carried a candy machine from the front of the building to the rear where they had entered, laid on its side and smashed it, taking all the cash.

Nothing else in the building was disturbed.

Flip of a Coin Will Decide Fate Of Art Gems

WASHINGTON (AP)—Art gallery officials will step out of the confines of the art world soon for a ceremony that resembles a cross between a baseball draft and a dice game.

The officials will divide the 85 paintings left to the National Gallery of Art and New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art by the late Lillian Guyer Timken.

Mrs. Timken, who died last October, did not explain in her will how the museums should divide the paintings.

John Walker, director of the National Gallery here, announced that he and James Rorimer, director of the Metropolitan, had decided on a way of dividing the lode. The proceedings may take place at the Metropolitan next week, Walker said.

The method involves grouping and coin tossing. Here is how it works:

The paintings have been divided into a series of groups of two, each group balancing the other.

In each series, Walker and Rorimer will announce at the same time which group they prefer. If each wants a different group, he gets the one he wants. But, if they both want the same group, a coin is tossed and the winner gets his choice.

In one series, for example, these are the alternatives. Group one offers "Christ at the Well" by Rembrandt, "Madonna" by Van Dyck, a portrait by Gainsborough, and "Large Fete" by Pater. Group two offers "Love Letter" by Boucher, "Happy Family" by Fragonard, a portrait by Moroni, and "Deluge" by Turner.

The Timken collection also includes paintings by Titian, Veronese, Reynolds, Tiepolo, Raeburn, Watteau and other masters.

The paintings were found in the huge, dusty, 24-room apartment of Mrs. Timken on Fifth Avenue in New York after her death. Mrs. Timken was the widow of William Robert Timken, cofounder of the ball-bearing company.

SURPRISE SIGHT—Tourists viewing the White House (rear) got an unexpected treat when the helicopter carrying President Eisenhower flew over their heads. The whirly-bird landed on the lawn of the Executive Mansion. The President was returning from a trip to Camp David, Md.

Desegregation Delay Granted in Atlanta Schools

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal judge delayed until September, 1961, the desegregation of Atlanta public schools.

In granting another year of grace, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank A. Hooper said Monday, "It's the last chance this court can give."

The judge said a year ago that Atlanta must start desegregating its schools, and approved a pupil placement plan submitted by the Atlanta Board of Education.

But he had not previously set a date for the grade-a-year plan to start, although there had been speculation it would be this fall.

Hooper said he wanted to give Georgia a chance to avoid the fate of Virginia, where "the tragic thing . . . was that the people would not give an inch until their children were out in the street."

He said, "I sometimes think that's what it will take in Georgia —to close schools to get integration."

* * *

Hooper turned down the plea of Mrs. Constance Motley of New York, counsel for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, to order immediate desegregation.

Hooper said he wanted the 1961 legislature, to be elected in November, to have a chance to enact laws providing for gradual integration. The legislature will meet in January.

Negro attorneys said they would appeal the delay.

Hooper said if the 1961 legislature does not alter Georgia's rigid stand against integration, the order will go into effect next May 1, affecting the 11th and 12th grades when classes begin in September.

Twenty five members attended the meeting in charge of David Welsh, president.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN WORLD WAR II, Nazi General Rommel was raising all kinds of trouble in North Africa, and the Allies were determined to stop him at all costs. A very insignificant unit in the Allied forces consisted of one scout, one submachine gun and one middle-aged camel. The scout had been out on a reconnaissance mission for some days when an Arab turned up at headquarters with an electrifying message. "Scout say," he reported, "he returning at once. Rommel captured!"

A great reception was planned for the hero, with a regimental band and a couple of field marshals (all of whom have since penned their reminiscences) whipped up for the occasion. When the scout and camel stumbled into camp, alone, everybody felt pretty much let down.

"Where's Rommel?" demanded the C. O. "Rommel?" repeated the scout. "How should I know?" "Didn't you send back a message, 'Returning at once, Rommel captured'?"

"Heck, no! What I said was, 'Returning at once. Camel ruptured'."

Market's Ability to Recover Is Encouraging Many Analysts

By WILLIAM FERRIS
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market's ability to make some recovery, however mild, from the low set early last week continues to encourage many market analysts.

They note that the market's close last Tuesday was at 599.61 in the Dow-Jones industrial average compared with 599.10 set March 8. Since last Tuesday, the trend has been upward.

Thus, in the lexicon of chartists, a "double bottom" has been established.

This technical situation is drawing widespread comment from analysts. Spear and Staff, Inc. said, "it appears to us now that the Dow (industrial average) must stage another and more decisive test of the previous lows before market confidence is restored.

"We are inclined to believe such a further testing would again be successful."

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. said, "It must be remembered that prices as measured by the Dow-Jones industrial average established a double bottom last week.

"If precedent is to prevail, we would expect that level to hold and provide a base for good forward progression.

"Our views are rather optimistic here insofar as stock prices are concerned and we would rather be a buyer of stock than a seller."

A different attitude was taken by Investors Advisory Institute, Inc. It noted, "Some observers have been encouraged by the fact that the market rallied before it fell below its early March lows.

"If this does lead to further advance, investors are advised to take advantage of opportunities to eliminate weaker holdings among cyclical and speculative issues and strengthen portfolios.

"New commitments should continue to be undertaken only on a highly selective basis."

Also unimpressed by the setting of a double bottom was Joseph E. Granville of E. F. Hutton & Co. He said, "The decline which was temporarily halted last Tuesday is probably about to resume."

Granville said that if there is to be a summer rally, there should be advance evidence of it by now. He added there was no such evidence.
